

MRS. LANDSOWNE TELLS MITCHELL COURT OF EFFORT TO SILENCE HER

Colonel Calls Widow of Shenandoah Commander to Support His Charges of Coercion.

MEMORY OF DEAD INSULTED, SHE SAYS

Tells of Visit Paid Her by Secretary Wilbur's Aid—Denies She Recanted Original Story.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—A story of how she received communications from two officers connected with the Navy Department before she testified in the Shenandoah inquiry was told before the Col. William Mitchell courtmartial today by Mrs. Zachary Landsowne, widow of the commander of the wrecked dirigible.

Both of them, she said, called on her before she appeared before the board and one of them, Capt. Paul Foley, the board's judge-advocate, sent her a letter purporting to outline an attitude of acquiescence in the board's method of procedure. In a trembling voice, and over her own protest, she named Mrs. George W. Steele Jr., wife of the commandant of the Lakehurst air station, as the messenger who delivered the letter and who said that, although it was unsigned, it was from Capt. Foley.

The witness had been called to support Col. Mitchell's charge that an attempt was made to induce her to testify falsely before the board of inquiry, but neither prosecution nor defense asked her directly whether that charge was true.

"Insult to Husband."

She did say, however, that the description of her attitude contained in the letter "from Capt. Foley" was "false" and an insult to the memory of her husband.

The other officer who she said called on her prior to her testimony before the board was Capt. Walter R. Gherardi, aide to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur. She merely said she had told him she did not hold the Secretary personally responsible for her husband's death.

Mrs. Landsowne was deeply agitated when she came to her description of the mysterious letter, which she said had been destroyed, she spoke so rapidly that the court stenographer had difficulty in keeping pace with her.

She did not indicate what "feature" of the letter she considered insulting, but she emphasized that it had represented her husband as willing to make "military flight" but unwilling to obey orders to make "political flight."

Mrs. Landsowne's description of the communication purporting to come from Capt. Foley as it appears in full in the official court record, was as follows:

"The statement was a very short statement, about three paragraphs, and it began with the remark that when I first accepted the invitation to the Shenandoah court to appear before it and testify for my husband, that I felt at that time that my husband was 'in need of defense, but since then I have changed my mind and felt that the court was absolutely capable of handling the situation and that I was entirely willing to leave it in their hands, and I was simply appearing because I promised to appear."

The second paragraph stated that my husband was regarded as the Shenandoah as a man of war and did not like to take it on trips for exhibition purposes, but that at any time, no matter what the weather conditions or landing facilities, he was at all times willing to take her anywhere in the event of military maneuvers."

The final paragraph simply expressed again my thanks and appreciation to the court, and that I was absolutely willing to leave it entirely to them."

The court and counsel stood as the first woman to testify in the case took the stand and was sworn.

Mrs. Landsowne Nervous.

She was nervous and plainly weak and weary from illness and the trying experience of recent weeks. She answered in a tremulous voice the preliminary questions put to qualify her as a witness.

"Did you receive a communication from Capt. Foley, trial Judge Advocate of the naval (Shenandoah) court, relative to your testimony before that court?" asked Representative Reid, counsel for Col. Mitchell. "I did," the widow replied.

"Have you that communication?" "I have not."

"What did you do with it?" "I tore it up."

Col. Sherman Moreland, the prosecutor, objected when Reid asked the witness what was in the communication she destroyed. The defense attorney said he asked the question because Col. Mitchell charged that the navy would "white-wash the Shenandoah case."

VETERAN AIRMEN CHEER MITCHELL AT BANQUET

Station WRNY Broadcasts Two - Minute Demonstration at Dinner Colonel Wasn't Allowed to Attend.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Three hundred aviators, all veterans of service over the battlefronts of France and Italy, boomed and blared for nearly two minutes last night at the Armistice Day dinner of aviators, Post No. 412 of the American Legion, held in the Hotel Roosevelt.

Millions of radio listeners must have heard the demonstration with surprise, for the program in which uniformed officers, outspokenly condemned the "old fogeyism" which they said has treated aviation as an adjunct of the kindergarten was broadcast in full by Station WRNY. Present at the dinner were many officers still holding high rank.

Charles S. Matthews, commander of the post, read a telegram from Adjutant-General Davis explaining how he could not permit Col. William Mitchell to attend the dinner because of the courtmartial trial in Washington for alleged insubordination. Col. Mitchell was to have been the guest of honor.

The cheers that followed the mention of Mitchell's name quickly changed to hisses. The boom grew in volume until Matthews finally managed to restore order.

After speakers had pointed out that the air service would get nowhere without the aid of commercial aviation, a telegram was sent to President Coolidge, from whom officers of the post had requested permission for Col. Mitchell to attend, "unequivocally indorsing" the stand of the former assistant chief of the air service. A second message was sent to Col. Mitchell informing him of the post's support. The present status of aviation from a defender among those at the dinner. Lieutenant-Colonel Benjamin D. Foulis, commandant of Mitchell Field and one of the army's first flyers, attacked equipment, management and limitation of personnel of the army air service.

forces in the Panama joint army-navy maneuvers.

The prosecution objected that the line of questioning involved confidential matters related to the canal defense plans and the court ruled that it would clear the room and hear confidential testimony in secret sessions.

Mal. Walsh said he reported to the War Department in 1924 his belief that if an American-controlled or Government-owned air mail service was not set up in Central America, a foreign concern, already on the ground, would take over the service, which he said would constitute an "ever present threat to the (Panama) canal's security." Gen. Patrick had approved his recommendations and submitted them to the War Department, he said.

No action was taken by the department at the time, the witness said, but a paper came to his desk two days ago, "directing that I confer on the question with War Department officers. The matter has been revived, I am told, and the War Department representatives to take up the air mail service whenever they call me."

The defense then introduced copies of the letters exchanged between Mrs. Landsowne and the Navy Department relating to plans for the Shenandoah's last flight.

Poley Came to See Her.

"Did Capt. Foley come to see you before you testified?" Representative Reid of the Mitchell counsel asked the witness. "He did."

"When?" "Two nights before I testified."

"When did you testify?" "Oct. 9."

Col. Sherman Moreland, the prosecutor, then took over the examination.

"Did Capt. Gherardi (aide to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur) visit you at Lakehurst, N. J., on or about Sept. 4?" he asked. "He did."

Mrs. Landsowne continued that she did not tell Capt. Gherardi that the "things she had said" in the newspapers about the Shenandoah were lies.

"I denied to Capt. Gherardi," she said, "that I had said that the Secretary of the Navy personally was the murderer of my husband. That is all I denied."

Mrs. Landsowne testified that the letter "from Capt. Foley" was given her by Mrs. George W. Steele Jr., wife of Capt. George W. Steele Jr., of the navy, who is commandant of the Lakehurst air station and of the dirigible Los Angeles.

Mrs. Landsowne further testified that the letter Capt. Foley sent her suggested that she state her willingness to waive legal defense on behalf of her husband, and authorize the naval court to act for him.

Asked About Testimony.

"What did Capt. Foley say to you when he visited you?" Reid asked.

"He impressed me with the importance of the court. He said the solemnity of my appearance was very great and asked me what I expected to tell the court."

"I told him I would emphasize the fact that the court had been sent on a political flight, despite Secretary Wilbur's denial."

Capt. Foley said I had no right to say it was political flight as the taxpayers had to see to their property."

Answering Major-General William S. Graves, a member of the court, Mrs. Landsowne said the letter from Capt. Foley had no signature to it and no mark to show even that it came from the Navy Department.

"How did you know it was a letter from Capt. Foley?" "Because my friend said so."

Names Mrs. Steele.

"What is the name of your friend?" "I had rather not say."

The question was repeated. Then Mrs. Landsowne said: "It was Mrs. George W. Steele Jr."

After Mrs. Landsowne had been excused, the defense returned to its assault on the army air policies in the further attempt to support Col. Mitchell's charge of "criminal negligence," on which the courtmartial proceedings against him are based.

Reid gilled Maj. Raymond Walsh of the air service and questioned him concerning the conduct of air

EARLY GRAND JURY ACTION PROBABLE IN CARLETON CASE

Testimony of Employees of Ferguson-McKinney and Carleton Dry Goods Co. Heard.

Early action by the grand jury, possibly today, upon the testimony heard today and Tuesday, from employees of the Ferguson-McKinney and Carleton Dry Goods Cos., controlled by Murray Carleton, and from banker creditors of Ferguson-McKinney, representing the chief losers in the $2,300,000 crash of that company, is in prospect.

Joseph Malecek, cashier of Ferguson-McKinney, was the first witness heard today. The next called was Alfred Baggett, secretary of Ferguson-McKinney. Others waiting to be questioned were Robert Stuber, assistant secretary of the Carleton Dry Goods Co., and Arthur Southward, cashier of the latter company.

Bankers Already Heard.

Four representatives of the banking interests were heard Tuesday. Yesterday, Armistice day, the grand jury did not meet, but Circuit Attorney Siderer and his staff questioned the witnesses.

Besides the statute which makes it a felony to misrepresent assets for the purpose of obtaining credit, the Circuit Attorney intends to use, in the present case, the checks and frauds statute, Section 3552, which is:

"Every person who, with the intent to cheat and defraud, shall obtain or attempt to obtain, from any other person or persons, any money, goods or valuable thing, whatever by means or by use of any trick or deception, or false or fraudulent representation, or statement or pretense, or by any other means or instrument, or device, commonly called the confidence game, or by means or by use of any false or bogus check, or by means of a check drawn with intent to cheat and defraud, on a bank in which the drawer of the check knows he has no funds, or by means or by use of any corporation stock or bonds or by any other written or printed or engraved instrument, or spurious coin or metal, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the State penitentiary for a term not exceeding seven years."

The section also provides for a penalty of imprisonment in jail or penitentiary up to five years, or $1000 fine, or both.

Baggett Also Questioned.

Malecek and Secretary Baggett were questioned together by the Circuit Attorney yesterday. Baggett went to the Circuit Attorney's office after having said last week through former Judge Henry S. Priest, then acting as his lawyer, that he would talk with the prosecutor only in Judge Priest's office, and with Judge Priest present.

Ferguson had placed personal I O U slips in the treasury of his company for a total of $439,000, has caused the inquiry whether Carleton obtained any large sum by the I O U method. Employees say he did not. Carleton's salary as head of the dry goods company was $550 a month, and he would sometimes draw part of this salary in advance, but it does not appear that he ever drew more than one month's salary in advance.

The total of the Ferguson I O U slips, stated yesterday as $439,000, was increased by $30,000 when it was learned that his use of the funds of the Alligator company, believed to have been about $150,000, had in fact been $150,000. The other Ferguson I O U amounts, as told yesterday, were $71,000 obtained from Ferguson-McKinney in 1923, and $188,000 obtained from Ferguson-McKinney in 1924 and 1925. The audit has not been completed.

De Forest Radio Suit Dismissed.

By the Associated Press. WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 12.—Judge Morris, in the United States Court today dismissed the patent suit of De Forest Radio and Telephone Corporation against the Radio Corporation of America, on the ground that the defendant, being a lessee and keeping within its rights is not an infringer. Edgar Maher, an attorney who serves occasionally as provisional Police Judge, and who is a connection of Baggett's family by marriage, was with him. Maher was willing that Baggett should be questioned under any circumstances that the Circuit Attorney desired.

Baggett's statement as to the "kiting" of large sums between the Ferguson-McKinney and Carleton Dry Goods companies, for purposes of obtaining credit, was given to the banker creditors' committee and to Receiver Angert, and was made public Tuesday. It was, in part, the basis of the bankruptcy proceedings against Murray Carleton directed criminally fraudulent acts in preparation of the Ferguson-McKinney financial statement, and that Forrester Ferguson, head of Ferguson-McKinney, had full knowledge of those acts.

Cashier Southward told, in the Circuit Attorney's office yesterday, of the passage of checks and drafts from the Carleton Dry Goods Co. to Ferguson-McKinney. He was unable to say whether any individual benefited from these remittances.

ACCOUNTANTS IN FALSE CARLETON AUDIT UNDER FIRE

American Institute of the Profession to Investigate the New York Firm of Mitchell & Simson.

By a Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—A searching investigation will be made by the American Institute of Accountants of all the circumstances connected with the audit last February of the Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co. by the New York firm of Mitchell & Simson.

It was this audit, which did not disclose the true condition of the company, accompanied by a letter from Murray Carleton, that gave the basis for huge loans by St. Louis and Eastern banks, of which they will salvage little.

A. T. Richardson, secretary of the American Institute, which corresponds in the profession of law, has begun the collection of information on which the investigation will be ordered.

Members of the Mitchell & Simson firm have steadfastly refused to make any public statement regarding the audit, or to offer any public defense of their failure to discover or to state in their reports, which were submitted by the company to the bankers, the transfers of money back and forth between the Carleton Dry Goods Co. and Ferguson-McKinney company, or to make mention of the padded records of accounts receivable and paid in the Ferguson-McKinney books.

Members of Firm Silent.

Efforts to interview them have been unsuccessful, though the purpose of the interview was explained to them through a secretary in their office, who reported back that she had conveyed the message and had been instructed to say that neither Mitchell nor Simson would make any statement, nor would either use a representative of any newspaper. Later a letter was addressed to Leslie N. Simson, again asking for an interview, setting out the general ground which it was desired to have covered. It remained unanswered.

The firm has been considered one of high standing among accountants in New York. Simson formerly was an accountant with Haskins & Sells, which for a number of years conducted the Ferguson-McKinney and Carleton companies' audits. The Mitchell & Simson firm made the audit of Ferguson-McKinney last February for the first time. New York bankers have no information as to whether it also audited the Carleton Dry Goods Co.

Richardson, at the office of the American Institute, 135 Cedar street, said to the correspondent of the Post-Dispatch that there would be a thorough investigation. A New York accountant of high standing, who probably will have a part in the investigation and for that reason refused to permit the disclosure of every detail of any party's business, and that a competent accountant should view the condition of a company's business was.

Purpose of an Audit.

"That's what an audit is," he said. "From the information at hand in this case, it appears that the accounts receivable and inventory were padded to the extent of more than $1,000,000, and that the padding of accounts receivable was in connection with goods shipped to Carleton Dry Goods Co. in the ownership of which was virtually the same as that of the Ferguson-McKinney company."

"It may be that this ownership was not disclosed in any of the records of the Ferguson-McKinney company, though the relationship likely was indicated in some other manner, and that the fact of the ownership of the accounts receivable have raised a doubt in the mind of the accountants regarding the sums due from the Carleton Dry Goods Co. and shown on the books of the Ferguson-McKinney company."

"Another question which arises is: Did the accountants get into the books of the Ferguson-McKinney company? There may have been somebody connected with the Carleton company in the Ferguson-McKinney company for such confirmation."

Purpose of the Investigation.

"It would hardly be proper to advance of an investigation as would be conducted of Chicago, and before the evidence is taken to pass judgment on it, the matter in detail. The fact is that the American Institute of Accountants is making the high standing of our profession. In a number of cases we could not to try this case again, and that is the way this matter will be handled."

"It can easily happen that there is no evidence of criminality, as would be required in a court of law, and plenty of evidence in justice action by our association."

Richardson had on his newspaper clippings giving details of the Ferguson-McKinney lapse, and said he would ask for complete information to be before a committee of the association.

Prosecutor Asks for Dismissal of Charges "in Fairness to Defendant and People."

MOTION GRANTED BY THE COURT

Jurors, Hopelessly Deadlocked, Refuse to Intimate How They Stood in Their Balloting.

LITTLETON, Colo., Nov. 12.—The jury that tried Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer on a charge of murdering his daughter, Hazel, the 34-year-old "child woman," was discharged by Judge Johnson at noon today, after it had reported it was hopelessly deadlocked.

Dr. Blazer later was cleared of all charges in connection with the death. Prosecutor Stone appeared before the presiding Judge and made a motion for a dismissal of all charges and the release of Dr. Blazer.

"I do not feel it the province of the District Attorney to prosecute anyone," Stone declared, "and in fairness to the defendant and the people, I now ask the court to dismiss the charges against him."

By the Associated Press.
LITTLETON, Colo., Nov. 12.—The jury that tried Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer on a charge of murdering his daughter, Hazel, the 34-year-old "child woman," was hopelessly deadlocked.

Dr. Blazer later was cleared of all charges in connection with the death. Prosecutor Stone appeared before the presiding judge and made a motion for a dismissal of all charges and the release of Dr. Blazer.

"I do not feel it the province of the District Attorney to persecute anyone," Stone declared, "and in fairness to the defendant and the people, I now ask the court to dismiss the charges against him."

"As a matter of humanity, we ought not to try this case again," motion granted, Judge Johnson said. "The defendant now is discharged and may go free. Upon formal motion of the District Attorney at any time the charges pending will be null and void."

Both Sides Satisfied.
"I am satisfied," Stone had declared. "We are satisfied," Judge Johnson declared.

"The jury was deadlocked on the issue of whether the defendant was sane when he committed the homicide," Judge Johnson said. "I believe that we would have reached a verdict with further deliberation."

"Only one man held out for conviction and the rest of us believe that he could have been dissuaded with longer discussion and deliberation."

Attorney Spangler declared her understanding of the jury who held out against acquittal was William Olson, a farmer of Fort Logan.

The jury has been out since 9:45 o'clock last night. Judge Johnson instructed the jury that only two verdicts—guilty of first-degree murder or acquittal—were possible.

Final arguments were disposed of speedily yesterday and the jury was given the case at 9:45 p. m. The closing plea was preceded by Judge Johnson's instructions and by his action overruling a defense motion for a directed verdict.

Hazel Blazer was not a reasonable human being, as comprehended by the statute of Colorado," Lewis Mowry, chief of defense counsel, said in making his motion.

"A being born of woman is human in the eyes of the law, which takes no account of metaphysical doctrines," the judge ruled in his denial.

Sanity Testimony Stressed.
Both sides laid heavy emphasis on the testimony as to the sanity of the defendant, but both also stressed arguments for and against the "humanitarian" aspect of the homicide.

"Dr. Blazer not only violated the laws of the State of Colorado, but the laws of God," Prosecutor Stone declared. "I resent the statement that Hazel Blazer had no mind. She was normal. Are you jurors going to admit that we have with us once more those Caesars who slay merely because they have the right to do so? I believe in the Bible, in the commandment, 'Thou shalt not kill.' It is the law of God and of man."

"Dr. Blazer is not on trial alone. Humanity itself is in the balance."

DIES OF BURNS

JOSEPH REID.

BOY FATALLY SCALDED TRYING TO GET DRINK

Joseph Reid, 3, Fell Into Tub of Hot Water Reaching for Faucet.

Standing on the edge of a bathtub filled with hot water, in order to reach a faucet for a drink, Joseph William Reid, 3 years old, fell into the water, suffering scalds which caused his death yesterday afternoon at Children's Hospital, where he was taken after treatment by a physician.

He was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Reid of the Westmoreland Apartments, 5330 Pershing avenue. The parents will depart today for Tompkinsville, Staten Island, N. Y., where funeral services and burial will take place.

Reid is district manager for the Bird & Son Sales Corporation of Chicago.

"Yes, we admit that he saw the girl," Mowry continued. "But we do not admit that he killed her with malice aforethought as the State must prove to secure conviction. Neither do we admit that he was sane when he committed the homicide as the State contends. Further, we contend that neither of the latter charges has been sustained by evidence here."

"Can you believe that this old father, who tenderly cared for this imbecile girl for 34 years and who lavished upon her his utmost devotion, could have slain his daughter with deliberate intent?" he asked. "Do you believe that he could have committed the homicide while in his right mind or while he was able to distinguish between right and wrong? We submit that the State has proved neither of these charges."

Another Defense Plea.
Attorney Spangler, for the defense, said: "Our testimony has shown that the defendant did not recollect what happened from 2 o'clock on the twenty-fourth of February until the following 22nd morning." (Dr. Blazer was left at home with Hazel on the day when the State charges, he killed the girl and made two abortive attempts at suicide in an effort to cover up his deed.)

"The defendant could not distinguish between right and wrong; he should be freed; for he is not guilty of this charge."

"Can you believe that all the diseases the alienists have testified to, but I think the old-fashioned word 'crazy' describes his condition best."

"The circumstances show that the defendant took the life of his daughter, but that he was in his right mind when he did so. His mind snapped on the day of the homicide as he watched his helpless, imbecile mass roll on the floor. It is a wonder to me, gentlemen of the jury, that it did not snap long before."

"This man is a Christian man, who believes in the immortality of the soul, the ten commandments and the presence of God—his beliefs in the future that will mean an answer for his sins—if he believes in these things he would not commit murder if he were in his right mind."

"His life-long devotion and care show that he did not do this act knowingly. If he was in his right mind he never would have caused her the agonizing pain of a death by poison."

HIGH-POWERED TROUBLE IN SALE OF ROLLS-ROYCES

$50,000 in Stock Paid Up
Earnest J. Krause Jr., Says, but Only Two Cars Were Disposed of.

The failure of a high-powered sales organization to sell high-powered automobiles was outlined before Referee in Bankruptcy Colos yesterday by Earnest J. Krause Jr., president and treasurer of Earnest J. Krause Inc., distributors of Rolls-Royce and Moon motor cars, until recently located at 5187 Delmar boulevard.

Krause, who resides at 4540 Lindell boulevard, testified that his concern purchased the assets and assumed the liabilities of the McNeice-Hill Motor Co., predecessors at the Delmar boulevard location, early in 1924, and obtained the agency for the Rolls-Royce and Moon cars. The new company was incorporated for $200,000, Krause said, of which $50,000 was paid in. He contributed $27,000 in cash. Krause testified, his mother Mrs. Louise R. Krause, invested $12,000, and two other stockholders put in the additional $11,000.

Earnest J. Krause, Inc., went at the business of selling automobiles in no "piker" fashion, according to revelations at the bankruptcy hearing. Krause, in his voluntary petition in bankruptcy filed last month, lists among assets a miniature Moon roadster, reduced to scale and used for advertising purposes, which he said cost the concern $2000; moving picture apparatus valued at $1600, purchased to display films showing the various manufacturing stages of Rolls-Royce and Moon machines; and $1000 worth of radio equipment, also designed for advertising purposes but never used.

Sold Two Rolls-Royces.
The ultramodern selling accessories plus a suave sales force succeeded in disposing of two Rolls-Royces, however. A number of Moon cars were sold, Krause testified, but "cut-throat" competition on the matter of "trade-ins" brought the concern to where it was unable to pay its bills. This point was reached late last summer, according to Krause, and resulted in the Moon Motor Car Co. driving seven Moon machines from the premises. Krause's display room back to the factory. A Rolls-Royce machine, on which $350 had been borrowed, was claimed by the Remedial Loan Company about the same time, Krause said.

Not having any machines to sell, Krause said he tried for two months to negotiate the sale of the business and, when this failed, went into voluntary bankruptcy. His petition lists assets of $44,000 and liabilities totaling $64,000.

An appraisal of the firm's property, however, shows assets worth but $4500, according to Trustee Tobin. Krause admitted, under questioning, that most of the assets listed in the bankruptcy petition were of doubtful value at this time. The hearing continued pending further action in liquidation.

Krause entered the business upon his return from Europe, where he was the representative of the Fairbanks company of New York. His wife, who was Miss Jeanette M. Huttig, daughter of the late Charles H. Huttig, whom he married in 1919, died in Berlin in 1922. From her father, who was president of the old Third National Bank, who died in 1912, and her mother, who died in 1920, she and a brother inherited an estate of about $100,000. While in Europe Krause traveled extensively in a private yacht, which he brought here, along with a special built roadster automobile, valued at $13,000.

ACCEPTANCE OF HELLMICH'S RESIGNATION IS INDICATED

Custodian of Federal Property Instructed to Send Payrolls to Collector of Customs

Acceptance of the resignation tendered by Collector of Internal Revenue Hellmich after his indictment in the Jack Daniel conspiracy at Indianapolis was indicated today in telegrams sent from Washington to custodians of Federal property in neighboring sections of Illinois.

The custodians, most of them postmasters, were directed to refer to Collector of Customs Hall the payrolls formerly sent by them to Hellmich to be paid from a special disbursement fund.

The wire advises this step "because of the fact that Hellmich has resigned as Collector of Internal Revenue." The new plan of forwarding the payrolls to Collector Hall is to be continued, it is stated, until a successor has been appointed for Hellmich.

13 KILLED AND 40 HURT AS ST. LOUIS TRAIN HITS ANOTHER

Lancaster, Pa., T. H. Bowman, Filinton, Pa.; Charles Inch, C. A. Polk, M. P. Strouse and W. P. Strouse, no addresses given.

The company announced 122 uninjured passengers were taken off the two trains and sent to New York.

The wreck occurred about two and a half miles from this little village, not far from Princeton.

Rescue squads worked in feverish haste for hours to extricate Arthur Gross of Schenectady, N. Y., from the mass of twisted steel.

Father, a priest from Princeton, made his way through the wreckage to administer spiritual aid. Nuns from Trenton also reached his side and gave him stimulants. He finally was removed and given first aid treatment on the spot. His condition is critical.

S. B. Davis, superintendent of the Eastern division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, said that it was believed neither signal nor switch was at fault. Other officials expressed the opinion that it was possible the Washington train had passed through a switch on to the track supposed to be clear for the St. Louis flyer.

The Public Utilities Commission has sent investigators to the scene. At the point of the accident the tracks are straight for nearly 10 miles. Witnesses said a heavy fog prevailed.

The two eastbound tracks were blocked by the wreck, necessitating diversion of all traffic to the westbound tracks.

The Washington-New York Express consisted of three mail cars, two coaches and three sleepers. The engineer was J. H. Moore and the conductor C. S. Neal.

The St. Louis-New York train comprised 10 cars, five of them mail cars, one private car, three sleepers and one coach.

The impact telescoped the rear sleeper of the Washington train and smashed the next car, impeding many in the first aid treatment.

Kuhlemann of Baltimore, a passenger on the Washington train, said Theodore Greenburg, listed as one of the injured in the Pennsylvania railroad wreck today, is a brother of Max Greenburg of 5575 Kingsbury avenue, New York, who was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Max Greenburg for three weeks. At the Max Greenburg home it was said he was a produce commission merchant of Denver, Colo., and left here expecting to spend several months in New York.

PUBLIC SERVICE PROPOSED AS RADIO LICENSE CONDITION

National Conference Favors Giving Secretary of Commerce Power to Grant or Withhold Permits to Broadcasting Stations.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—A report containing broad recommendations for the solution of major problems in every branch of radio was adopted at the concluding session of the fourth national radio conference.

Containing recommendations for legislation, for sharply reducing the present number of broadcasting stations to relieve congestion, and for the elimination of interfering elements in radio reception, the report was declared yesterday by Secretary Hoover, chairman of the conference, to be the most far-reaching and constructive yet made.

He indicated that the proposals for solution of various problems would become in a general way the temporary policy of the department in its regulation of radio, but expressed doubt as to the wisdom of placing the broad powers outlined in the hands of any one governmental official.

One of the most important actions of the conference, in Hoover's opinion, was his declaration that service to the radio listener should be the prime consideration in all efforts of the industry and in its regulation.

No Wave Length Changes.
Under the resolutions adopted, no major alterations will be made in present wave length assignments, and minor changes will be confined to the commerce, with authority to appoint advisory boards; that the doctrine of free speech be held inviolate; that monopoly in the industry be prohibited, and that broadcasting licenses be granted only to those who, in the opinion of the secretary, would render beneficial service to the public or contribute to the development of the art.

The President, under the program, would have authority to commandeer or discontinue all broadcasting stations in time of national emergency. Decisions of the Secretary of Commerce could be appealed to the courts. Station call letters would be recognized by law as property rights during the life of broadcasting licenses, which the secretary could suspend or revoke when their holders had not lived up to their terms.

The rebroadcasting of programs would be prohibited except by permission of the originating station. The secretary would be given power to enforce regulations against interference from radio sources.

Elimination of Interference.
The recommendations regarding elimination of interference emphasized discontinuance of manufacture and sale of radiating devices, of which it was estimated there are several millions now in use.

Owners of broadcasting stations were urged to guard against variations from their assigned wave lengths.

Elimination of the spark type transmitting set as rapidly as possible also was urged, together with a recommendation that no further licenses for use of spark equipment on amateur wave lengths be granted.

The conference expressed the view that use of super-power in broadcasting had not increased interference, but had improved receiving condition.

Minor Recommendations.
Other recommendations called for slight changes in license requirements for station operators, including one to relieve inland operators of the requirement to listen in for ship distress signals; elimination of the distinction between class "A" and class "B" stations on the ground that the lines between them have been dissolved; designation of all stations on the basis of power and wave-length assignment; establishment of fees from $25 to $500 a year for broadcasting license; a requirement that preliminary permits authorizing construction of a station be made essential for obtaining a license to operate, and protection of wave bands for use of radio compass and beacon services.

TWO MEN KILLED IN SEWER CAVE-IN

Bodies of Workmen on East St. Louis Excavation Are Recovered.

Two laborers were killed at 10:15 a. m. today when a sewer excavation on Ninth street, a few feet north of the intersection with Lake street, St. Louis, caved in, burying them under about six feet of earth.

The bodies were recovered and taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where they were identified as Frank McGowan, 52 years old, of 14274 Gaty avenue, and George P. Lamotte, 48, of 624 North Sixteenth street.

Both men were working in an excavation about nine feet deep on the west side of Ninth street, when a 40-foot section of the trench caved in. Jar from passing trucks is believed to have caused a slab of earth about three feet wide, between the trench and the pavement, to crumble.

Eight other laborers in other sections of the trench escaped and immediately set to work to dislodge those trapped. Within 20 minutes the bodies were reached. Death had been caused by crushed skulls and internal injuries.

The Louis Rich Contracting Co., in charge of the work, has started an investigation.

MRS. HOLBROOK HEIRS AGREE TO SHARE ALIKE

Settlement Disclosed in United Action Against $10,000 Attorney's Fee.

A hearing today before Probate Judge Holtcamp over an attorney's claim against the estate of the late Mrs. Jennie A. Holbrook, former wife of Walter J. Holbrook, real estate dealer, disclosed that an agreement has been reached between the two principal claimants to divide on an equal share basis her estate which at the time of her death last November was estimated to be worth $100,000. This, however, included $125,000 in notes which her former husband was said to have given her when she divorced him in 1908.

The beneficiaries are the Century Methodist Church, Mrs. Holbrook's church, and Miss Bille Edith Stanley, Mrs. Holbrook's "furse and companion" for three years preceding her death, who was named in a will dated April 4, 1924.

Jones H. Parker, attorney representing both Miss Stanley and the church, made the announcement that a settlement had been reached.

Parker appeared to resist the claim of Attorney Francis E. Williams for $10,000 for legal services rendered Mrs. Holbrook from January, 1923, until her death. These services, Williams sought to show by witnesses—being prevented himself from testifying by rule of law—included legal and business advice, drawing of wills, obtaining a removal of a guardianship, when Mrs. Holbrook was declared of unsound mind, and, finally, the arrangements for the funeral.

Mrs. Holbrook, a welfare worker, met Miss Stanley by chance in 1921 and took her into her home at 4310 West Pine boulevard. Upon the filing of the will naming Miss Stanley as chief beneficiary, attorneys for the Century Church sought to file the earlier will, but the application was disallowed.

However, in July of this year, Judge Holtcamp set aside the will naming Miss Stanley in favor of the Century Church will.

The involved status thus was clarified today, when announcement was made that the contenting beneficiaries had been reconciled.

The cash value of the estate is estimated today at about $25,000.

ate idea and has been in close consultation with Senator Borah, it probably will be ratified.

The interest rate figures at only a fraction of the per cent after adjustment of the accrued interest, but the Americans took into account the poverty of Italy. She is now taxing her people as much as American experts think possible. Moreover, as the principal of her debt to Great Britain is 20 per cent more than she owes us and she must pay Great Britain proportionately, concessions had to be made.

UNION TAILORS AGREE TO END WALKOUT

Settlement, in Effect, Calls for Restoration of Open Shop and Piecework.

The two months' strike of union tailors employed in the higher-priced shops terminated yesterday when about 150 employees, meeting with members of the Merchant Tailors' Association, signed an armistice that, in effect, means the restoration of the open shop and piecework in the 10 shops affected. Representatives of the Journeymen Tailors' Local Union No. 11 did not participate in the negotiations, as the employers insisted that they would deal only individually with the men.

The strike was called Sept. 14 when 450 union members walked out of 21 shops. Subsequently 11 shop owners agreed to the union deal with the workers yesterday hours from 48 to 44 hours weekly and a maintenance of the $40.80 weekly wage scale.

The shops which agreed employed about 250 men and are now bound for one year to the contract calling for shorter hours and a weekly wage. Shop owners who dealt with the workers yesterday will have them return to work on the employers' terms inasmuch as the agreement provides that the individual and the employer agree upon terms of employment.

Samuel Fox, president of the Merchant Tailors' Association, said the 10 firms which agreed with workers yesterday were Kohler-Roemer Tailoring Co., Driemeyer Tailoring Co., Phil Goldstein Co., Halloway Tailoring Co., H. Uselman Tailoring Co., Rotherberg & Sons, Peterson-Bockelman-Prie Tailoring Co., Schmidt Tailoring Co., Powers & Sidell Tailoring Co., and the Wilson-Petelle Co.

John W. Tass, union representative, declined to discuss the settlement, remarking that since Fox seemed to be the spokesman, he might as well present the union side of the agreement. This union has been paying its strikers a benefit of $15 weekly.

American and Italian proposals does not mean the difference in the aggregate that is to be paid, but the difference in calculations of the present value of the two propositions.

The epistolary debate Senator Borah and President Piez of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association over the French debt negotiations is still going on. Senator Borah received another letter from Piez yesterday. The Senator regards it as part of a general propaganda movement, but would make no comment on the letter.

"Your letter clearly indicates," wrote Piez to the Senator, "that you approach the question from vote-getting rather than debt settling from a political rather than a business angle. I am no more for cancellation than you are, and as a substantial annual contributor to the Federal Treasury I am as keen as you are to remove any tax burden reduced through the repayment of loans made to our Allies."

LOVE LETTERS TO RHINELANDER READ

Plaintiff in Annulment Suit Says Wife Denied She Was Part Negro.

time as if carved from wood. Her eyes rarely left his face. They gazed out at him through narrowed lids. She was subjecting him to a speculative scrutiny, but the nature of the speculations remained a matter for conjecture. Her features were set in hard, unchanging mold, and the high cheek bones seemed more prominent than ever. The unwavering eyes with their indefinable intensity of expression gave a menacing cast to the graven features.

Propensity to Stutter.

Rhineland's testimony followed the lines indicated by his counsel in his opening speech to the jury. Before he was called to the stand a former governess for his sister who had tried to teach him French, a former tutor and a former Sunday school teacher had been called by Mills to substantiate the contention of Rhineland's counsel that he had been mentally backward since a child and slow to grasp the meaning of things.

When he took the stand he quickly corroborated all that had been said regarding a propensity to stutter. His answers, although given in jerky instalments, were direct and to the point. There was no indication of inability to grasp a question and formulate a coherent answer, and several in the courtroom later commented on his use of good English.

He said he was 22 years old. "You recollect going to the Orchard in Stamford, Conn., in February, 1921?" he was asked. "Yes," he replied.

The Orchard is the sanitarium or "club" for the treatment of nervous and mental diseases which Rhineland was attending when he first met Alice Beatrice Jones.

Describes Courtship.
Only once did he speak sharply. That was when he was asked about the letters read in court Monday, in which Mrs. Rhineland spoke of intimate details of their life.

"I did not deliver them personally into the hands of my lawyers," he said. "I left them in the house."

"We found them," interjected Mills, and the examination continued along other lines.

Rhineland told how he became acquainted by chance with Grace Jones and how he met Alice later through her sister in September, 1921, when he was 17 years old. He told how the friendship ripened, until he was calling on his future wife at least four times a week.

One night, he testified, they went to New York to see a play and he learned that Alice was to spend the night at the Hotel Marie Antoinette.

"I asked her if I might accompany her," he said. "She refused at first, but after some persuasion she agreed."

They registered at the hotel under the name of "Mr. and Mrs. James Smith of Rye," and then remained at the hotel for a week. In 1922 they again went to the same hotel, registered under the same name and stayed two weeks. It was while on this latter trip that an attorney for Philip Rhineland, her father, discovered the two and took Rhineland to Atlantic City. Ten days later, he said, he got a telegram saying Alice was ill and he returned to see her in New Rochelle.

He identified a number of letters he had received from his wife in which she expressed her love for him.

He was still under direct examination, concerning a trip to Bermuda made at his father's direction, when court adjourned.

Mills introduced six letters out of the 425 which Alice Jones is said to have written Rhineland. Then Mills turned to Leon R. Jacobs, counsel for the Rhineland family, and asked him for other letters. Jacobs fumbled nervously through the stack of brown envelopes on the table. "They're gone," he said. "They were right here before the last recess, and now they're gone. They haven't been out of my hands for a year, except when they were in a vault, and now I leave for a minute and come back to find them gone."

About 60 letters are missing, and they cover a most important period in the relations of the couple.

Counsel Perturbed.
The Rhineland counsel table immediately became a scene of consternation. Mills remarked that Jacobs probably left them in his office. Attorneys said if the letters were not found the plaintiff's case might be weakened.

Among the letters are some that caused the presiding judge to announce that all young people would be barred from the courtroom.

A sentence in one letter introduced read: "Well, sweetheart, how did you get home after such a wild excitement with me?"

Asked to explain, Rhineland said: "Why, I believe that was the night we went to a cabaret with some friends and had a few drinks and began to feel well, rather frisky."

Negroes Make Protest to Coolidge.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—A protest against alleged discriminations against negroes by the Civil Service and in the Government departments was made to President Coolidge today by a delegation of negroes from many cities who are holding a conference here. The delegation protested also that railroads are unfair to negro passengers in violation of laws providing for separate but equal accommodations for white and negro passengers. The President was urged to issue an executive order abolishing alleged discriminations and segregation in the Federal departments.

Women's New Winter Coats Show Furs to Match Their Fabrics

Two Attractive Groups Are Priced at

$69.75 to $98.75

A new tendency in the Coat mode sponsors furs in colors to match the materials used in elaborate ways as trimming. Gray Coats are squirrel trimmed, browns show beavers or dyed furs to match, black fabrics are much used with black fox on wide collars and cuffs.

The silhouette is straightlined or flaring in a pronounced manner—flares begin at hip, and in this added length emphasize the animation that is theirs. Straightlines boast under-arm trimming and deep fur collars, and thus each mode emphasizes its own particular type of styling.

TOY TALES

ISS! Boom Boom! Mother Bear and Tony and Tommy Trotty and the little wobbly brown bear (who hadn't any name, because Mother Bear couldn't think of another name beginning with "T") awoke from their long Winter nap and crawled outside their paper-box home to see what was the matter.

Four Tin Soldiers were trying to chase the animals back into the Ark, and they made such a terrible noise that the bears were very much frightened.

"Come children," cried Mother Bear, "we will all be killed in this confusion."

Tony and Tommy and Trotty all followed their mother, but the little brown wobbly bear got caught between two elephants and was swept into the Ark.

That night when he sobbed and cried for his mother a brave tin cowboy carried him back to his paper-box home and rapped as loudly as he could. "Who's there?" asked Mother Bear.

"Teddy, Cowboy," came the answer. "I have brought home your little brown wobbly bear"—and that is how Mother Bear found a name for her little brown wobbly bear, and from that day to 'this he has been called "Teddy Bear."

KEEP LOOKING YOUNGIt's Easy—If You Know Dr.
Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action and always effective. They were given to him when he was in the army and cleared the system of impurities. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 50c.

GOULD TRUSTEES HELD LIABLE FOR $50,000,000 LOSS

Referee Places Blame for Mismanagement on George, Edwin and Howard and Mrs. Shepard.

FRANK ABSOLVED
FROM RESPONSIBILITY

Declares Trustees Had No Right to Use Funds to Protect and Develop Railroads.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Former United States Senator James A. O'Gorman, referee in the accounting suit of the $52,000,000 estate of the late Jay Gould, has handed down an opinion on the nine-year litigation, in which he disapproved of the use of the trust funds as a loan in support of the Missouri Pacific Railroad and set forth bad management.

He found yesterday that the trustees, headed by the late George Jay Gould, eldest son of the founder of the great Gould estate, should be held liable for losses on such investments, which he deemed speculation. When asked afterward what the loss amounted to, Walter B. Walker, attorney for Frank Jay Gould, the youngest son, said it was impossible to compute the sum accurately at the moment, but that when all the surcharges have been computed the total of principal and income surcharge probably will be in the neighborhood of $50,000,000. The bulk of the losses were in Missouri Pacific control.

Under the decision of the referee the four trustees would have to stand the loss equally. They are the estate of George J. Gould, Edwin Gould, Howard Gould and Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, their sister. She was not absolved in the opinion.

They would get part of the sum back through their share in the estate.

Legatees of George Gould. Those who became beneficiaries of George J. Gould's estate were his second wife, Mrs. Guenevere Sinclair Gould, now the Viscountess Dunsford, and her three children: his children by his first marriage—three sons, Kingston, Jay and George J. Jr., and four daughters, Lady Decies, Marjorie, wife of Anthony J. Drexel Jr.; Edith, wife of Carrol Walnwright, and Gloria, wife of Henry A. Bishop Jr. For his widow, George J. Gould established a $500,000 trust fund and later signed a letter giving her $1,000,000 in Liberty bonds. This addition was contested by the executors of his estate, but was awarded by the courts in settlement, and each of her three children receive $10,000 annually.

One of the lawyers in this litigation said that if the view of the liability on the part of the trustees of the original Jay Gould estate were upheld the second Mrs. Gould would be called upon for a share along with the others who benefited from the estate of George J. Gould.

The four trustees, with George Gould in the foreground, started the court action originally to account for their stewardship. Voluntary objections to the accounts were filed on behalf of Frank Jay Gould and the proponents became defendants.

Frank Gould Not Responsible. The opinion stated there was no evidence to sustain the charge that Frank J. Gould should be held responsible as if he were actually a trustee, his actions being claimed as mechanical and not ratification. It recommended that the application of Edwin Gould as trustee be granted.

My conclusion is that the investments in connection with the Gould railroad system were not suitable or proper for trust funds and cannot be sustained as made in the exercise of a sound discretion. Referee O'Gorman said in his opinion. "They were speculative undertakings beyond the power enumerated in the will. None of these securities was purchased by the estate because the securities were believed to be desirable investments, but were acquired solely for the purpose of supplying the Missouri Pacific Railroad system with funds which were used in part to make payments on account of the unsecured loans made by the estate."

No Right to Take Risks. "While the testator in his active career was in the habit of taking the hazard of uncertain business ventures, these trustees had no right to take the same or similar business risks with the money of the estate."

"There is no language in the will permitting the inference that the testator intended that his trustees should use trust funds for the purpose of conserving, protecting and developing railroads in which he was interested at the time of his death."

In regard to the claim of Mrs. Shepard that she was not responsible for the acts of the trustees

GOULD TRUSTEES HELD LIABLE FOR $50,000,000 LOSS

because she did not take an active part in their counsel, Referee O'Gorman said:

"The claim is made that Helen Gould, now Mrs. Shepard, should be relieved from all or some of the responsibility attaching to the other trustees, although it appears from the evidence that she participated generally in the management of the estate. She was not a passive trustee. She insisted upon the retention of the investment in the Manhattan Railway Co., and did so against the judgment of her brothers, George and Edwin.

Attitude of Mrs. Shepard.

"She was a constant supporter of the estate's policy of financially supporting the Missouri Pacific system. She was a strong believer in carrying out what she regarded as her father's policies. She personally signed the checks for the $7,000,000 Missouri Pacific convertible bonds acquired from the Kuhn-Loeb syndicate and she advised large advances made in connection with the development and reorganization of the International & Great Northern Railroad Co. She was at times most scrupulous in the performance of the duties, but like her co-trustees, she acted under a misconception as to the duties and responsibilities which attach to fiduciary relation."

As to the responsibility of Frank J. Gould, the opinion states:

"It appears that in 1895, when but 17 or 18 years of age, he entered the estate offices and continued there until about 1910."

About the time Frank became of age it was arranged for the convenience of the trustees that his presence would be equal to that of one trustee for the purpose of deposit or withdrawal of securities in or from the vault, also that his countersignature on estate checks would be equal to that of one trustee. His actions were merely clerical and mechanical and cannot be regarded as ratification. These actions doubtless gave him some knowledge of what the trustees were doing, but evidence is lacking that ratification was made with full knowledge of the material particulars."

Secret Commissions.

The acceptance by George J. Gould of secret commissions on the sale of estate-owned Western Union stock was said by the referee to have been a violation of duty as a trustee.

Regarding the timber lands in Louisiana, which were not included in the original estate as proposed in 1892, but the title to which was vested in the six heirs and upon which there was subsequently realized $12,000,000, the referee said:

"It is claimed that the children of Jay Gould were put to an election as between their rights as heirs-in-law in Louisiana and their rights as beneficiaries under the will in New York, and that in order to take under the will, they were required to turn over to the trustees the proceeds of the land in question. The estimated value of the lands at the time of the testator's death was $4,000,000. There were some sold years later at $12,000,000. In the meantime, Anne (now the Duchess of Talleyrand-Perigord) sold to her brothers and sister her one-sixth interest therein for $100,000, which was her proportionate share based upon the value of the land when her father died. The title of the six children as heirs-at-law to these lands is a paramount title and cannot now be impeached directly or indirectly."

The opinion was delivered to the attorneys in the case, with instructions for them to submit the findings to the Supreme Court. Then will follow a court order. Should it sustain the referee, any of the parties to the litigation may appeal.

MOSCOW, Oct. 25.—Russia lost 754,000 men in the World War, the statistical department has announced. During the 40 months of warfare the Government spent $25,000,000,000, which placed a military tax of $750 on each peasant's homestead. FOUR RETIRED POLICE CAPTAINS DISCHARGED

Offices of Special Investigators Are Abolished by the Board.

Four retired police Captains, who have served from 36 to 52 years each, are to be dismissed from the force Dec. 31. They are Peter Reynolds, Edward J. Phillips, George T. McNamee and William J. Doyle.

The Police Board, at a special meeting yesterday, adopted a resolution abolishing on that date the offices of special investigators now held by the four since their retirement from active police duty. It was announced the four will be entitled to $2000 each from the Police Relief Association, but nothing at all in the way of pensions, as they have not been assessed pension fund dues.

Now Getting $145 a Month. Reynolds, Phillips and McNamee were retired in 1921, and Doyle in 1924. They have since been paid $145 a month and have been assigned to light duties at Municipal Courts and elsewhere. The office of special investigator was created especially for them by the former Police Board.

Reynolds is 78 years old and has been on the force for 52 years, prior to which he was a soldier. He served as Captain from 1895 to 1921. His health has been poor lately. He resides at 5931 Minerva avenue.

Phillips is 77 years old and has been a policeman for 50 years. As a patrolman he had the largest beat in the city, from the Three-Mile House at Prairie and Easton avenues to the Six-Mile House near Wellston, and could get around it only once every 12 hours. He was a Captain from 1895 to 1921. He is reputed to be wealthy. His residence is at 5597 Page boulevard.

McNamee, 71 years old, and a bachelor was a school teacher before donning a uniform 45 years ago. He served as Captain from 1898 to 1921, since which he has been admitted to the bar. While in command of the Mounted District, he attained the distinction of riding in the first departmental automobile. He resides at 3521 Laclede avenue.

Doyle is 60 years old and has been on the force for 36 years. He was a Captain from 1913 to 1924, his last command being the Wyoming Street District. He resides at 2610 Alhambra court.

TAXICAB ROW TAKEN TO COURT

Canary Company Gets Temporary Rights at Union Station

A temporary restraining order permitting the Canary Taxicab Co. to use the Union Station concourse was issued by Circuit Judge Falkenhainer today, after the Canary company filed a damage suit from $20,000 against the Terminal Railroad Association and asked for an injunction forbidding the railroad to limit the concourse to Brown Cab Co. machines.

The petition alleges that the railroad recently executed a "monopolistic contract" with the Brown company whereby for $2000 a month that company was given exclusive use of the concourse. It contends that the concourse is a public street. Judge Falkenhainer ordered the Canary company to furnish $1000 bond, and set the case for hearing Nov. 25.

IRISH ARMISTICE DAY RIOT

Some Want to Celebrate, Others Don't; 15 in Hospital.

DUBLIN, Nov. 12.—Baton charges and shots fired over the heads of the crowds by the civic police were necessary to clear the streets last night after a day of suppressed excitement and demonstrations for and against observance of Armistice day. In counter demonstrations crowds of youths in military formation marched through the streets singing and cheering for the Irish Republic.

The hospitals treated 15 who were injured, three seriously. One ex-service man died from injuries in a fight in a public house. At times police were powerless to disperse huge crowds which were addressed by Republican speakers.

Woman Held for Killing Man. A coroner's jury today returned a verdict of homicide in the case of Florence Hawkins, 25-year-old negro, who was charged with shooting Fred Bunting, 33, at 2197 Walnut street, Tuesday. Bunting died at city hospital yesterday. The woman did not testify at coroner's hearing. She was held without bond.

PLAN FOR METHODIST UNION DEFEATED

Bishop McDowell Says Southerners Apparently Objected to Admission of Negroes.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 12.—An announcement that the proposal to unite the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, North, had failed, due to opposition in the Southern church, has been made to the board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The announcement was made yesterday by Bishop William F. McDowell of Washington. He said that apparently the Southern church objected to the admission of negroes to the union. Bishop McDowell said that, although the final results of the referendum on the union had not been received, it was mathematically impossible for sufficient favorable votes to be returned from the con-

TWO TOWNS WANT NEW BUILDING OF STATE TEACHERS

Jefferson City and Columbia in Keen Rivalry for Proposed $40,000 Headquarters Structure.

ARGUMENTS HEARD AT MEETING HERE

E. L. Hendricks of Warrensburg New President of Association—Next Convention at Kansas City.

Whether the proposed $40,000 headquarters building of the Missouri State Teachers' Association is to be at Jefferson City, seat of the State government, or at Columbia, seat of the State university—that is the question before the organization for a decision during its present convention at Hotel Statler.

At a morning session yesterday, the General Assembly voted in favor of Jefferson City. In the afternoon the Columbians mustered sufficient strength to have the vote reconsidered.

J. A. Serena, president of the Teachers' College at Cape Girardeau, attributed the reconsideration to agitation by alumni and other representatives of Missouri University. In reply, the chairman, C. A. Phillips, a professor at Missouri University, said charges of lobbying would not be permitted in the discussion.

Arguments of Contestants. Two representatives of the Columbia Chamber of Commerce have been in St. Louis, seeking the new building for that town. Jefferson City also has its emissaries. The Columbia proponents say the association is essentially educational and should have its headquarters in an educational center; those from Jefferson City argue legislation programs can be managed better within the shadow of the State Capitol.

The office of the secretary and treasurer now are at Columbia. Serena said many delegates fear the "State university crowd" will try to dominate the association. Officers for the coming year elected yesterday are: E. L. Hendricks, president of the Teachers' College at Warrensburg, president; Miss Grace Toomey, grade teacher at Kansas City, first vice president; A. F. Bornberg, Superintendent of Schools for Franklin County, second vice president; and W. C. Barnes, Superintendent of Schools at Carthage, third vice president. E. M. Carter of Columbia continues as secretary and treasurer.

Next Meeting at Kansas City. It was decided to hold the next convention in Kansas City.

About 600 delegates have registered at convention headquarters and more are expected. Addresses on educational subjects were made yesterday by Charles Lee, State Superintendent of Schools, and J. A. Linke of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, Washington.

LONDON DOCTOR TALKS OF CAUSES OF CANCER

Declares That Habits of Civilization Bring Bodily Deterioration.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News
(Copyright, 1925.)

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Cancer as a disease of civilization was the subject of an address last night by Dr. Hastings Gilford before the Royal Institute of Public Health. Dr. Gilford shocked both the lay and medical sections of the audience with the flat assertion that cancer in women is very often the penalty of modern habits which have been causing physical deterioration.

He suggested that there was reason to believe that the present notable increase of cancer among women was at least partly due to the fact that they do not have enough children nowadays and that they do not have them early enough. The doctor conceded that the present type of boyish woman, with short skirts, narrow waists and bobbed hair, was admirable in many ways, but he went on to warn that such a change could be accomplished without devastating physiological effects.

Meanwhile London medicals are interested in news from Toronto where Prof. Blair Bell of Liverpool University announced the successful treatment of a number of advanced cases of cancer by the injection of lead salts.

A third interesting cancer item developed overnight as the result of the famous Bernard Oxa experiments of a few months ago. The Morning Post quotes an anonymous British researcher of high rank, who has just returned from Paris, as saying that two French bacteriologists have produced a vaccine which will kill the toxic agents in the Oxa virus under certain conditions. If true, this announcement may be of extreme importance, but all reputable observers remain deeply skeptical.

Liverpool U. Confirms Account of Lead Injection Treatment.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Publishing Co., New York World.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Dr. George D. Adams, vice chancellor of Liverpool University, confirmed today the statement at Toronto of Prof. William Blair Bell, director of cancer research at Liverpool, that Prof. Bell has discovered what appears to be a successful method of cancer treatment by lead injections. "We cannot any longer keep secret our successes in cancer treatment," Dr. Adams said. "We have not wished to make it public before because we were dealing with sharp tools. Indeed, it will be understood that the difference between putting into the body something that will kill the cells of a tumor and not the cells of the body itself, must be very fine, indeed."

"As a result of this danger it has only been possible to treat cases where hope previously had been given up. A painfully large number of cases were gone too far for any good results, so the proportion of cases cured to those treated does not give a true indication of the value of the treatment. Scientific success in cancer treatment," Dr. Adams said. "We have not wished to make it public before because we were dealing with sharp tools. Indeed, it will be understood that the difference between putting into the body something that will kill the cells of a tumor and not the cells of the body itself, must be very fine, indeed."

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The treatment of cancer by intravenous injections of lead described yesterday before the Toronto Academy of Medicine by Prof. W. Blair Bell has been tried unsuccessfully upon animals, Dr. Francis Carter Wood, director of the Crocker Research Laboratory of Columbia University, said today.

Dr. Wood said he had for some time been familiar with the lead treatment developed by Dr. Bell, but had found nothing in it that offered any definite hope in the treatment of cancer.

Here's a safe easy way of getting rid of embarrassing superfluous hair—KARMA, which penetrates and loosens the hair root, and when removed, gently lifts out every objectionable hair, root and all, and leaves the skin hair-free, soft and beautiful. 21,750 POUNDS OF SPOILED FOOD SEIZED IN WEEK

Supplies Were Held at A. A. Selkirk Warehouse for the Red Line Products Co. of Memphis.

SALE NOT HELD BY AUCTION FIRM

U. S. Bureau Head Says St. Louis Was One Market Center to Dispose of Unsalable Goods.

Widespread and organized methods of distributing foodstuffs unfit for human consumption were disclosed today by seizure, under orders of the Government pure food and drug station in the Customs House, of 21,750 pounds of rotting mince meat and wormy dried apples, peanuts, noodles, spaghetti, and hominy grits, held at the A. A. Selkirk warehouse for the Red Line Products Co., Memphis. This made a total of 21,757 pounds of such foods, including wormy raisins and decomposing condensed milk, anchovies, lima beans and tuna fish in cans, all held here for the Red Line concern, which has been seized since Wednesday of last week. The seizures were made at the same warehouse, but the auction company, after seeing the nature of the goods, had refused to sell it. E. R. Smith, chief of the St. Louis bureau pure food station, which covers Missouri, Arkansas and Southern Illinois, said that St. Louis was but one of six distributing stations. "The thing is national in scope," he remarked, "and drastic action is imperative to avert flooding of the country with inedible foodstuffs. Some of the canned goods was in about the worst state of decomposition I have ever seen."

Tells of Methods. The Red Line Products Co., Smith said, is owned by the Plough Chemical Co. of Memphis and is a distributor of extracts. He said that for two years the concern had been operating on this system: Seven men in the field located unsalable stock, which, Smith judged, generally consisted of spoiled foodstuffs. For $1000 cash and $1000 in such unsalable stock, figured on a basis of cost plus 10 per cent, the Red Line concern would forward $2000 worth of its extracts. The unsalable goods would be shipped to a designated auction house in Chicago, St. Louis, Houston, New York City or Kansas City or to the Red Line offices in Memphis. It would be sold on the basis of 75 per cent for the auctioneer and 25 per cent for the company.

Prosecution Planned. "I attended one such auction, which was stopped by our seizure of the goods," Smith related. "It was largely attended by retail storekeepers of St. Louis and East St. Louis, and by the proprietors of boarding houses. It is my impression that St. Louis was considered a fertile market for goods unsalable elsewhere. However, the Government nipped it in the bud—I do not believe any of the stuff has actually been sold here."

The Red Line company, he said, probably was protected, since, in a local case was it the shipper of the objectionable goods, and its contract, to be signed by the shipper, carried a guaranty of conformity with pure food laws. But, he added, prosecution of the shippers was contemplated. The goods seized here came from three grocery concerns in Kentucky, one in Illinois and one in Nebraska. Penalty for the first such offense is limited to a $200 fine, but for the second it may be a $300 fine and a year's imprisonment. Other food and drug stations have been notified to be on the lookout for such shipments.

SCREAMS ROUT ASSAILANT AFTER ATTACK ON WOMAN

Mrs. Mary Kemper, 19, Was Struck From Behind While Walking on Street Car Track.

Mrs. Mary Kemper, 19 years old, of 3614 Missouri avenue, was attacked and dragged into the high weeds which line the River des Peres near Broadway, this morning. Her screams caused her assailant to flee. Mrs. Kemper had ridden to the end of the Broadway line on the way to her mother's home at 282 Lemay Ferry road. The "dinky" car which runs south was not in sight, so she started to walk down the track. She was near the river when her assailant struck her from behind.

Mrs. Kemper said she did not see the man. She was dazed at first, she said, and when she screamed he fled. At her mother's home she was treated for a laceration of the scalp.

Burglars in Normandy Used Ladder. Two children's banks, $80 in cash and jewelry valued at $400 was stolen by burglars last night from the Normandy home of Ernest H. Richardson, vice president of the Boyd-Richardson company. Marks on the lawn indicated the robbers used a ladder to ascend to a second-floor window and gain entrance.

TEAMS TO OPEN COMMUNITY FUND DRIVE TOMORROW

1200 Workers of Employee
Division to Meet Tonight for Final Instructions on Campaign.

$200,000 QUOTA SET FOR WAGE EARNERS

County Representatives Receive Supplies and Plan of Procedure at Meeting
Today.

Initial work of the first unit in the Community Fund campaign will get under way tonight with the general meeting of the 1200 workers comprising the employee division at Moolah Temple.

This division, the largest in the campaign, covers all the wage earners in the industrial and commercial institutions of the city and county, the schools, railroads, public utilities and banks. The meeting tonight of chairmen, captains and plant representatives will be for the purpose of receiving last-minute information and plans for the general campaign which starts tomorrow.

There will be entertainment features as well as short talks by Daniel K. Catlin, general chairman, and Bert H. Lang, campaign chairman of the Community Fund. The main address will be made by Daniel N. Kirby, former chairman of the fund.

Employee Quota Set at $200,000. The employee division, the largest numerically in the drive, has a quota of $200,000. Each firm in St. Louis has responded in a volunteer way and organized their own plant committees for solicitation.

"Profiting by the experiences of other years, we believe we have a most efficient organization this year," said W. B. Weisenburger, general chairman of the employee division. "Not a plant but what has been seen, not a firm that has refused to co-operate and with an organization 85 per cent which is splendid for volunteer response, we expect to bring up the per capita gift of St. Louis to the higher standards set by other American cities."

"So that every St. Louis employee can know the Community Fund which they help, at first hand, the plant representatives are being appointed on an all-year-round basis, not only to collect, but to consider for agency relief any worker's case coming to his notice through that particular firm's employees. We believe this will not only bring the fund closer to the workers, but elicit a more generous and general response."

The personnel of the Employee Division, besides the chairman, is as follows: E. G. Steger, secretary; E. H. Steedman, chairman, Industrial Employees; Harry Ter Braak, secretary, Mayfield; Mayfield, chairman, Mercantile Employees; Andrew G. Mungenast, secretary; Walter J. Neun, chairman, Public Employees; Albert T. Perkins, chairman, Utility Employees; L. V. Baldwin, chairman, Railroad Employees; F. W. Johnson, assistant chairman; Chester B. Curtis, chairman, Schools.

County workers met today at noon at the Forest Park Hotel, where they received supplies and were instructed on campaign procedure by W. H. Henby, chairman of the county division. Other speakers were Bert H. Lang, campaign chairman; Julius Nolte, attorney in Clayton; P. H. Byrns, secretary of the county division, and Rev. John R. McCarthy, pastor of Bellefontaine Methodist Church. The county division is divided into 14 districts, with a chairman for each district.

CATALANISTS ARE ORDERED TO DISBAND IN BARCELONA

Spanish Deny Rumors of Plot Against Primo de Rivera but Admit Internal Trouble.

By The Associated Press.
PERPIGNAN, France, Nov. 12.—Travelers arriving from Barcelona report that the civil Governor has ordered the dissolution of two associations of Catalanist tendencies, with several thousand adherents.

The police are reported to be seeking former Governor Portela of Barcelona, a prominent Free Mason and once a member of the Cabinet. The arrest is reported in Madrid of Gen. Lopez Ochoa, also a Free Mason. Certain circles, the travelers say, seek to establish a connection between the actions of the Italian and Spanish Free Masons.

The homes of many Catalans have been searched during the last few days.

The Catalan movement in the past has had for its object the formation of an autonomous Catalan state.

By The Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 12.—Reports received today through Paris that a widespread plot had been discovered in Spain against Gen. Primo de Rivera, head of the military dictatorship, were denied by the embassy here. There was no question of widespread trouble, the embassy stated. It was admitted there had been difficulties in one regiment at Covadonga over military awards, but this trouble, it was declared, was purely local. (Covadonga is between Oviedo and Santander.) The British Foreign Office has heard nothing of any untoward events in Spain.

Virtual Prisoner of Feng,
So-Called Christian General.LATTER EXPECTED
TO SEIZE CAPITAL.Some Members of Tuan's Cabinet Resign—Partisans of Chang Tso-Lin
Flee From City.By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 12.—Anticipating a coup by Feng Yu-Hsiang, the so-called Christian General in Peking, says the Evening News Tokyo correspondent, the Japanese cabinet was called in extraordinary session today to consider the protection of Japanese lives and property in the Chinese capital.

It is reported, the correspondent adds, that the navy is prepared for any emergency, with 1000 cruisers ready to move at a moment's notice.

There are contradictory reports regarding Feng's attitude, but the general belief is that he has definitely broken with Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord, while his most powerful lieutenant, Gen. Tseh-Wel-Chun, Governor of Honan, is reported to have thrown in his lot with the allied Yangtze forces.

Tokio Thinks Feng Has Changed Mind About Supporting Tuan.

TOKIO, Nov. 12.—Reports from Peking are that Tuan Chi-Jui, Provisional President of China, is virtually a prisoner there and civil war seems spreading once more.

A strict censorship of dispatches has been in force apparently for the last 48 hours and even official circles here are without complete knowledge of what is happening in Peking.

It may be gleaned from occasional cables, however, that Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang has changed his mind about supporting the Government of Tuan Chi-Jui, which was to unify China and has marched his nationalist troops into Peking again.

These are the troops which Feng marched out of Peking last spring, declaring he considered his mission accomplished. He had defeated Gen. Wu Pei Fu and "expelled a corrupt Government."

Feng Held Veto Power.
For a year the present Government of Tuan Chi-Jui has struggled with the complex conditions of Chinese politics to reconcile the personal ambitions of leaders of the North, Center and South, of militarists and pro-Japanese monarchists who would restore the Manchurian dynasty, and of those who would defer to the wishes of Japan above all.

All this time Feng and his troops outside Peking have held a veto of force over the Government which now seems to be applied.

Tuan Chi-Jui, head of the powerful militaristic and pro-Japanese Anshu Club, is believed here to be in a position where he must choose a new Premier chosen by Feng to conduct the Government, under the nominal presidency of Tuan, but as Feng dictates. This amounts to a virtual change of dictatorship—Feng in place of Tuan—for the moment at any rate.

Discussion here concerns itself with the effect of Feng's action on the present international customs conference. Japan will not suggest an abandonment of the conference as a courtesy demands such a move should come from China, where the idea originated.

Chief Executive Reported a Prisoner of the Christian General.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 12.—With an apparent censorship in effect, the North China Daily News learns from private sources in Peking that the chief executive, Tuan Chi-Jui, is practically a prisoner in the hands of Feng Yu-Hsiang, the so-called Christian General.

The report coincides with an Eastern News Agency message that Feng decided to disarm Tuan Chi-Jui's bodyguard with the object of taking Tuan into custody on the plea of guarding him.

Some Members of Peking Cabinet Resign and Others Flee Capital.

PEKING, Nov. 12.—Some of the members of the cabinet have resigned, and several officials, supporters of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord, have fled the capital.

First Soviet Ship to Sail for U. S. Bound Goes to the Pacific Coast.

Opposing University Plan.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson has refused to consent to the publication of her letter of disapproval to R. M. Petty, president of the National Woodrow Wilson Memorial Association, which has announced plans to collect $5,000,000 to construct a university in the "Virginia hills" near Washington. She will remain silent and let those who desire to contribute to a memorial to her husband pay their money to whichever of the various Wilson memorials they may choose.

The confusion that has prevailed for weeks because of the multiplicity of Wilson memorial movements still exists. The promoters of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, headed by Norman H. Davis of New York and the Wilson birthplace plan must compete with the project which Petty and his associates are pushing.

Secretary of the Navy Willbur has made public a letter written to him by A. W. Lowell of the National Woodrow Wilson Memorial Association on Oct. 23 to show that he had withdrawn his name as one of those promoting the university in the Virginia hills. Other prominent public men whose names appear on the lists used by the association will withdraw.

The National Woodrow Wilson Memorial Association is perfecting its organization. Appeals are being made to members of Congress to join it. Senator Lee S. Overman of North Carolina is among the late recruits.

HOUSE COMMITTEE DECIDES TO RETAIN PISTOL TAXTask of Putting Agreements Into Statute Form Turned Over to Subcommittees.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Details of general provisions so far approved by the House Ways and Means Committee in its preparation of the tax-reduction bill were taken up today by subcommittees.

With agreement reached on the new tax schedules involving a saving of more than $300,000,000 a year to taxpayers, the committee has adjourned until Monday.

Simplification of the income tax was favorably considered by the Ways and Means Committee in connection with revision of the 1924 revenue act, and it turned over to a subcommittee the task of determining the feasibility of such a project.

Decisions reached yesterday included:

Retention of the 10-per-cent tax on pistols and automatic revolvers.

Authorization for the Treasury to make compromise settlements in cases of insolvency where collection of full amounts would force taxpayers out of business.

HOMER CUMMINGS RESIGNS
FROM DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEEFormer National Chairman and Member From Connecticut Since 1900 Explains Action in Letter.

By the Associated Press.
STAMFORD, Conn., Nov. 12.—Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee and a national committeeman from Connecticut since 1900, has resigned from the latter position. His resignation was sent to Clem L. Shaver, chairman of the party in Washington, and to Edward E. Yeagans, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

Cummings, in letters to Shaver and Yeagans, stated that "my personal and professional affairs are of such a character that I cannot continue in my present position." Cummings said he did not wish his friends to gain the impression from his letters that he was losing interest in public affairs or that he was growing indifferent to the welfare of his party. He feels, he letters said, that he has "rendered all the committee service that can be expected of me and that whatever I am able to do in the general interest of the party had better be done along other lines."

FIND ROME BEGGARS AT HOME
AMONG CITY'S RICH CHILDRN

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

ROME, Oct. 24.—The police have found that many of the sorriest and most pathetic appearing street beggars are some of the city's most opulent citizens behind the walls of the bastion.

One of these aged mendicants was searched and his pockets shown to contain about $30 as one day's receipts. Another beggar was found to be a proprietor of dwelling houses, another an owner of a lively stable that boasted several horses and carriages, a third was a professional money lender at unscrupulous rates, had a four-story apartment house and was the most expensive restaurants in the evenings.

Cesare Sanezi, pained and miserably dressed in tatters, died on the street of heart disease. His body was gathered up unceremoniously by carabineers and buried in the public cemetery for the destitute. It was later learned that Sanezi was a member of one of the most noble of Florentine families, and that he bore the authentic title of count.

GOVERNOR LAYS SCHOOL TAX PLAN
BEFORE TEACHERSSeparate Fund Is Answer to Demand for Uniform
Standard of Education,
Baker Asserts.SAYS STATE MUST PROVIDE FOR YOUNG"Like Highways, Instruction Is Not a Matter to
Agencies."

Before the Missouri State Teachers' Association at the Coliseum today, Gov. Baker argued that his proposed constitutional amendment to establish a separate educational fund in the state treasury to answer to a public demand for a uniform standard of education in rural schools and higher educational institutions, as a whole, instead of leaving the question of education to local communities and governments.

The Governor, who is a former State Superintendent of Schools at Joplin and Jefferson City, was the principal speaker at the first general session of the association's sixty-third annual convention. Public schools of the city were closed today and will be closed tomorrow that local teachers may attend the session which continues through Saturday.

Preceding the Governor on this morning's program were Dr. Edward Howard Griggs, who spoke on "Education for a New Era," Miss Mary E. McDowell, Commissioner of Public Welfare, Chicago, on "The Cost of a Meager Educational Program," and Dr. Robert J. Kerner, acting dean of the Graduate School at the University of Missouri, on "Our Professional Investment."

Gov. Baker's subject was "Better Support for Missouri Schools."

"There is a growing feeling that it is the function of the State to provide for the education of its young," the Governor said. "Like the building of highways, it is a matter to be left entirely to local agencies."

"At the present time, through lack of revenue, many State educational institutions are suffering. Buildings under process of construction cannot be completed until there is more revenue. It is my opinion that if this amendment is adopted at the November, 1926, election, it will mean much more revenue to the schools, and at the same time will not mean an increase of taxes."

The proposed amendment would provide approximately $12,000,000 for the schools, the Governor said, of which 60 per cent would go to free public schools, and 40 per cent would be distributed among the University of Missouri, the College of Agriculture, the five State teachers' colleges and other higher institutions.

Under the amendment as it now stands, the fund would be established by diverting into it the revenue from the 5-per-cent direct State property tax, and creating a 10-per-cent tax on cigars and cigarettes, and a severance tax on mineral products from 1 to 2 per cent of their case value.

"To long have we talked about support for the schools of the state, too long have we wondered whether or not this that action would prejudice people along political lines," he continued. "The time has come for all those genuinely interested in education to stand up for the schools and get behind some movement for a permanent school fund. It will be impossible for all to agree, but we must lead the schools above personal opinions."

The chief executive also told the teachers that "parsimony towards education means liberality towards crime," and quoted figures on the large percentage of illiteracy among criminals. He argued that good schools are a financial asset and quoted figures on the higher earning power of better-educated men.

He also told the convention that teachers should be leaders in their communities and urged them to assert their right to an influential position.

"Why shouldn't the teacher be the most influential individual in the community?" he asked. "If he is big enough morally and intellectually to advise and instruct children, he is big enough to advise the parents."

Addresses Negro Teachers.
Baker also addressed the negro teachers at Sumner High School this morning, and tomorrow afternoon will speak before a Parent-Teachers' Association at Roosevelt High School.

This afternoon the teachers' convention will divide for separate sessions. The division of higher education will hear Dean F. J. Kelly of the University of Minnesota at the Chamber of Commerce; the division of secondary schools will hear Dr. Thomas H. Briggs of Teachers' College, Columbia University, New York, and Dr. Merle McDowell, Commissioner of Public Welfare, Chicago, on "The Cost of a Meager Educational Program," and Dr. Robert J. Kerner, acting dean of the Graduate School at the University of Missouri, on "Our Professional Investment."

Gov. Baker's subject was "Better Support for Missouri Schools."

The same skill in penmanship that makes a good bank clerk will make a successful forger. The same ability to dominate and guide that makes a great educator, statesman or moral leader will also make the most dangerous of confidence men. In short, said Dr. Edward Howard Griggs of New York, addressing the State Teachers' Association today, all education that does not go for character goes for tools and equipment, which, without character, are dangerous.

"Education for the New Era" was the topic chosen by the author and lecturer. If education must meet the requirements for the new era, he declared, it must focus on character, upon "building strong, fine, thoughtful, cultivated, consecrated men and women."

History and literature were, to his mind, the humanistic elements of the curriculum, and he stressed their influence for patriotism, adding, "When I say patriotism I do not mean jingoism. I do not mean the wicked attitude of being blind for one's country, 'right or wrong' do not mean throwing up your hands and shouting when the soldiers go by, and forgetting all about it next week, year or decade when the real issue is on."

"I mean that attitude of mind which is sober, thoughtful and earnest; as ready to weep over a national crime as to 'exit' in a national achievement, as ready to stand erect and face the mob when the mob is wrong, as it is to assume leadership of the people when the voice of the people happens really to be 'the voice of God.'"

"Such a spirit is cultivated, not by preaching about it, not by Fourth of July orations about it, but by bringing the student in contact with our society, but noble literature, our great achievements, still loftier aspirations and our occasional grave fault and failure."

Closer Co-operation of Colleges Urged by Eugene Fair.
Closer co-operation among Missouri colleges was urged by Eugene Fair, president of the State Teachers' College at Kirksville, in an address today before the Missouri State Teachers' Association. Yearly conferences made up of representatives from each student body, faculty and administrative force, were suggested by President Fair as a means toward formulating ideals for which they stand.

"Out of these conferences," he said, "should come definite, conscious, aggressive support of the public schools," which would "do much to erase the idea that we have in Missouri public and private institutions—all are really public."

Among methods to co-operate more closely he listed the elevation of standards for admission to the faculty, employment of the best recreational experts, group purchasing of materials and a combined effort to boost the graduate schools of Missouri.

City Child Needs Directed Play More Than the Three
R's, Says Welfare ExpertLarge Towns, Built for Commerce, Present
Recreational Problem as to Children, Teachers Are Told.

Cities are built for commerce and industry and not for children. Hence the increasing flood of children in the courts, and hence "reading, writing and arithmetic" become less important than directed play, which might make child life normal even in a city. Public Welfare Director Mary E. McDowell of Chicago declared today in an address to the State Teachers' Association.

Children are no worse than they used to be, but their living conditions are worse, she said, so much worse as to generate criminal tendencies. The public indicts the family and the school, but forgets the boy's or girl's leisure on the streets or in the movies. And the American people, "cheerfully optimistic," forget in the scramble for material things what is happening to the children.

"Live at High Tension."
"I live in a great city, built for adults and commerce and business, which ignores the fact that children must live there," she said. "Most children in the cities, and even in the small towns, are living at artificially high tension. Their minds are too much crammed at school. The entertainment at the movies is taken uncritically by child observers. Their imagination is too often fed with unwholesome and salacious stuff. Much of it is not good for adults, and pure poison for children, especially for adolescents."

She spoke of the limitation of moving picture heroes and heroines by children not only in "dress and hair and powder and paint" but also in action, especially criminal action, and said that films fostered race and religious prejudice.

"Working boys and girls are summoned in the factory or in the shop where they do one infinitesimal process, or watch it, monotonously day by day," she said, adding that there was nothing pleasant about it but the pay envelope.

"For this reason, unconscious as they are of the needs of their nervous system, these young people turn for relaxation to the exciting and thrilling movie. Commercialized recreation is a dangerous educational force today."

She said that "profit-making on the leisure of children" must be offset by readjustment of education, with more stress on the work of visiting teachers, playgrounds and community centers. "A scientific student of the question states that the cost of disciplining one juvenile criminal for a year would furnish recreation for 85 children for that period," she remarked.

"When the taxpayer sees that social education is even more important than book learning at this critical period, he will be willing to pay the price for opening the schools for the use of the leisure time of the young of the community. He will be willing to pay the price for understanding the normal as well as the 'problem' child."

This step, it was announced, has been made possible by the accession of the people.

SAYS WILSON DIDN'T
STOP MARCH ON BERLINE. M. House, Asserts President Agreed To, but Did Not Demand the Armistice.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—E. M. House, confidential representative of Woodrow Wilson, yesterday denied charges he said that are general in Europe that the late war President prevented the armies from marching to Berlin and brought the World War prematurely to an end.

France, England and Italy wished peace more than the United States, which was fresh in the war, House declared to a New York World reporter. "To make sure of the feeling of the allies toward the armistice that had been proposed, he said, he asked Marshal Foch the point blank question whether from an exclusively military standpoint it would be better to stop the war then. He answered, House declared, that since the terms being demanded of Germany then were the same as would be demanded in Berlin, he favored the armistice immediately.

Trying to Make Wilson "the Goat."
"In Europe all the time," House said last night, "they are saying that Wilson was responsible for ending the war, trying to make him the goat."

"Did Wilson, as a matter of fact," he was asked, "favor the stopping of the war at that time?" "Yes, he would have wished it as it was," said House. "So did Lloyd George, Orlando and Clemenceau. The point is they place all the responsibility upon him when he was in the position of agreeing to the armistice rather than of demanding it."

Tells of Meetings.
House believed less favorable terms would have been obtained by continuing the war into the spring of 1919. He said the Germans had sufficient food supplies and by shortening their battle line could have held out; but it was the civilian population of Germany which was crumbling, as the President had hoped.

The meetings of Lloyd George, Clemenceau, Orlando and House at which occurred the important transactions looking toward the armistice proposal were held in the mornings in House's Paris house at 12 Rue de l'Universite. Full meetings in the afternoon were held to ratify the conclusions reached by the "big four" earlier in the day. It was at one of these meetings Marshal Foch was called in and House asked the crucial question.

CABINET CRISIS AT THE HAGUE

Four Dutch Ministers Resign Over Vatican Legation Issue.

By the Associated Press.
THE HAGUE, Nov. 12.—A cabinet crisis was precipitated yesterday by the resignation of four Catholic Ministers from Premier Colijn's Cabinet, following the adoption by the Second Chamber of an amendment to the budget calling for the withdrawal of the Dutch Legation at the Vatican. The amendment was moved by a Protestant member.

The press of the Netherlands is generally agreed that the question of "Dutch representation at the Vatican" has not been decided on the merits of the case, but purely on political considerations, as a means for testing the solidarity of the coalition on which the present Government is based.

LUXOR, Egypt, Nov. 12.—More than a million days ago priests of Thebes placed Pharaoh Tutankhamen in his coffin, where he lay undisturbed even by the future caused by the invasion of his tomb two years ago, until yesterday, when Howard Carter lifted the mummy out of the innermost of the gold covered cases inside the sandstone sarcophagus and propped it up against a wall.

Dr. Derry, professor of anatomy of Cairo University then submitted Tutankhamen to the X-rays which when developed, Carter expects will reveal whether the cause of his death in 1346 B.C. was tuberculosis, as some Egyptologists argue from the apparent decay of the face in the finely worked portrait statues or whether violence ended the reign of the youthful monarch.

May Make Post-Mortem.
In any case, the X-ray is certain to give the approximate age at death. If no indications of the cause are visible, Dr. Lucas, chemist of the Department of Antiquities, will analyze parts of the body for possible traces of poison. The King's internal organs are contained in the store chamber under the wings of the statues, which are the guardian angels of the supreme artistic treasure of the tomb.

Carter has formed a theory, from indications he declines to discuss, that Tutankhamen was possibly murdered by Horemheb, General of Akkadon, the heretic King. Horemheb himself usurped the crown. Carter aspires to the role of detective, to bring to light a crime committed 3276 years ago, and concealed until now.

King Hastily Buried.
Signs of haste and indifference in the actual burial, despite the treasures heaped in the tomb, cause the theory that Tutankhamen was secretly and hurriedly laid away amid the chaos caused by conflicting claimants to his throne. However secret the funeral, it cannot have rivalled the occasion of his awakening.

Every possible precaution was taken to prevent the loss of Carter's opening of the magnificent innermost coffin, where Pharaoh lay wrapped in sheets of gold, from reaching the outside world. Everyone present in the tomb swore in advance to secrecy as to what was found in the first disturbance of the un plundered royal burial.

The official communiqué, so far as it can be learned, will not be issued until government officials prepare a brief Arabic account at Cairo. The secrecy preserved at the climax of the whole tomb drama was imposed by the Egyptian Government.

The English and Americans concerned in the work declare that their hands are tied by promises under which the work is allowed again to be undertaken. The measures taken have proved effective. No crowd is around the tomb. Few tourists are here and these are unaware of the discovery, unique in the history of archeology.

The first dispatch, written on arrival, will be followed by news giving what particulars it is possible to learn of the contents of the inner coffin.

Royal Book of Dead.
I believe Carter has already had in his hands the most magnificent manuscript that has come down from antiquity, a papyrus roll, more than 100 feet long, the first royal book of the dead to be discovered. It is embellished with hundreds of paintings in color by Egypt's greatest artists in her supreme period of decorative art.

The outside of the last and most splendid coffin has now been cleaned of the black resinous layer formed by the funeral illutions poured in it by the mourners. The gold figures of the gods and other ornamental decorations are declared to be superior to any similar work found in Egypt.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

More Light on John I. Beggs.

Y OUR SUNDAY paper character study of the late John I. Beggs did not tell all of the story. Grant that in business he played a lone hand and a hard one. Grant that he loved money and power and won and held them. It is equally true that he won and held the personal regard of hundreds of plain working men who worked for the public service corporations he directed. "Some of the boys," said one of these old street car men at John I's funeral, "didn't like him because he wouldn't stand for any neglect of their duty. But he always stood back of men who did their duty." Ten years ago Milwaukee had less than 100 negroes. Today, more than 10,000. They have been pouring in here from the South to get industrial jobs. Learning that in my office was a man from the South who was interested in their welfare here, they have come to me frequently for help in getting jobs. In having my friend Mayor Hoan police their section so that it wouldn't be over-run by white crooks and unfortunates, as so often happens in the negro sections of Northern cities, and for counsel on how to live here. Since John I's death several of these colored men have come in to tell me that they could always count on John I. to donate cash to their betterment organizations in any crisis. Always with the demand that they keep his gifts a secret.

Your writer's temptation to make his picture wholly consistent led him into an easily refuted error where he says John I. loved his flowers but wouldn't share them. For years past during the open season he made it a habit to bring an armful of his favorite flowers several times each week from his suburban home, and to give them to his business associates and fellow workers who he had learned, also loved them, but had no gardens.

It is not true that he built electric interurban lines in advance of population growth, around Milwaukee, in order that he might make money speculating in suburban land. He built for Milwaukee one of the earliest and best interurban railway systems in the country. In advance of population growth, because he believed that it would come faster than it did, and that his companies would profit by it. His judgment was at fault here, in point of time. The big growth he expected 15 to 20 years ago is just now being made. Milwaukee is today reaping the full benefit of what he built two decades ago.

He was essentially a builder, a creator of new wealth for general use. That was his dominant natural urge. I do not recall any other man in Milwaukee's history who had an active part in the creation of more new wealth, or who made more jobs for more men, than John I. Beggs. Like all of us he graduated evolved a philosophy of life within the limits of his natural gifts and tendencies. If some aspects of it were unlovely, it is to be remembered, at least, that he earned what he got from life. If he seldom gave charity, he never asked it. He died as he lived, with his boots on, giving no odds and claiming none. He was, in a word, a much better and more useful citizen than he perhaps meant to be. Time reveals that fate has placed that little trick on a good many such men as John I. Beggs. As I saw him, he was a bulky old buccannier—a seventeenth century character born into the nineteenth century and surviving over into the twentieth.

Satisfied With Street Cars.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE controversy as to relative comfort of street car or bus is very amusing to me. I "sampled" the buses two or three times during the summer and decided that the reason some people prefer it, in face of the many disadvantages, such as sun in the eyes against which there was no protection in the form of shades, gasoline fumes, and jolting, is that they are gleating over an opportunity to "get even" with the United Railways. What their grievance is I cannot imagine, as the service is about the best in the country, and I, for one, would be glad to pay 10 cents every time I ride on one of the comfortable street cars. Knowing that this would be a hardship on many people, however, am hoping that some arrangement can be made so that the fare will not have to be increased.

STREET CAR PATRON.

Street Litter and Old Buildings.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

LET your Civic League and Chamber of Commerce get together and put a stop to this throwing of newspapers and advertising matter to the winds. It is unlawful to do so but it seems as if there must be a cup or prize offered by the way firms and the people throw rubbish into the streets and alleys. Wake up the police so that every storekeeper will quit sweeping refuse into the gutters. Have the schools take this matter up with the children so that St. Louis will be perpetually clean and not for just a day or so.

Besides there are a terrible lot of old, dirty buildings that should be torn down by owners and decent buildings erected east of your Grand avenue. But the filthy habit as stated above can and should be remedied at once by having the police make arrests of the violators.

G. T. C.

CALLS A SQUARE DEALER.

President Calles apparently has determined to abandon a mistaken, impracticable and indefensible policy to which the irascible Carranza attempted to commit Mexico. We refer to the famous Article 27 of the "Carranza Constitution." That article undertook to dispossess foreigners of certain property in Mexico by invalidating their titles and empowering the Government to seize the lands. Under its operation Americans who had invested in mineral lands, particularly oil, would have been the largest sufferers, though all foreign investors in the kind of property specified would have been victimized. Because of its retroactive feature Article 27 meant legalized confiscation.

The United States Government properly protested against such procedure. In the original protest prepared by Mr. Hughes while head of the State Department our Government disavowed any intention to interfere in Mexico's internal affairs or to dictate as to any system of land tenure or ownership she might establish. But we did challenge the right of the Mexican Government arbitrarily to seize property purchased and paid for by our citizens in good faith and under Mexican laws which respected and guaranteed property rights. That was the sum and substance of our objection to the retroactive character of Article 27. Our grievance was just. The point never has been debatable from the standpoint of honorable business custom or plain honesty.

President Calles, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Mexico City, has accepted our Government's contention. The bill for the enactment of Article 27 as a statute is to be amended and the amendment provides that the measure shall not be retroactive. In the form recommended by President Calles the measure specifically declares "that present foreign property rights, both within and without the forbidden zones, acquired before the promulgation of the article, shall continue throughout the life of the present owners and may be inherited by their heirs."

There are provisions in the bill which foreign investors may not like. The obvious purpose of those provisions, however, is to safeguard the Mexican people's equity in the country's mineral wealth and to prevent the ruthless exploitation of Mexico's natural resources by foreigners. In the light of Mexico's history and her experience with the vultures that have swarmed upon her under a medley of flag and her precautions are well taken and men of good will everywhere approve her prudence.

But Article 27 was absolutely wrong. It was constitutional piracy. In junking it President Calles has placed Mexico in the way of becoming a good neighbor to Uncle Sam and taking her proper place in the family of nations.

COMPPELLING SUNDAY OBSERVANCE.

As the outcome of a movement started by the Perth Amboy Ministers' Association the people of Middlesex County, N. J., were subjected to universal raiding by police last Sunday in an endeavor to stop all secular activities, including the driving of motor cars and the playing of golf. The police had orders not to swoop down upon the people until after church services, presumably to give those attending church time to get indoors and escape the dragnet.

It seems inconceivable in this day that county and municipal officials would lend themselves to such a program of tyrannical intolerance or that any community in the United States would submit to it. The right to move, to come and go, is one of the fundamental rights of liberty protected in the Federal and in all state constitutions; and it is as inviolable on Sunday as on Monday.

This periodic crusading on the part of clergymen and stupid officials is instigated on the utterly false assumption that Sunday observance may be enforced on religious grounds, when, in fact, Sunday laws are upheld in our courts as sanitary measures only, to afford one day out of seven for rest and recreation. That day could as well be Tuesday or Thursday, so completely is it divorced from religious motives.

The health departments of our states might appropriately interest themselves in Sunday observance to the extent of encouraging recreation, but for clergymen to do so with the object of preventing recreation is absurdity as well as tyranny.

TO MEET BUS LINE COMPETITION.

The buses that compete with suburban passenger trains and have caused some of the railroads to consider curtailing suburban service are not going to have it all their own way if the new oil electric engine fulfills the promise made for it in the recent experimental run in Canada.

This engine, using cheap oil to generate electricity, which in turn moves the car, made a nonstop run of 237 miles, sometimes at the speed of a mile a minute, and climbed one of the steepest Rocky Mountain grades at an average speed of 40 miles an hour—a remarkable record.

As this engine is the lightest of its kind in the world outside of airplane engines, and occupies but a small space in the front of a car, it is evident that it will be a great improvement on the heavy, cumbersome, wasteful steam locomotives now used for suburban as well as long-distance railway travel. Figures of cost are not given, but it would seem that such a small engine must be less costly to run than any locomotive, with its huge boiler and coal-carrying tender.

Designed for suburban service to meet bus competition, it met its first test as an efficient mechanism. The further development and final success of the experiment would appear to be only a matter of time and management.

OH, SAVE THE STAGE HANDS.

In the current issue of Theater Magazine there appears an editorial deriding the effort of New York theatrical managers to protect the morals of stage hands. It seems that in certain shows where girls appear practically unclothed, every effort is made to hide their nakedness from scene-shifters and property men. This undignified, from scene-shifters and property men. This undignified, from scene-shifters and property men. This undignified, from scene-shifters and property men.

The Theater Magazine is satirical about this effort to keep stage hands pure, and ably penetrates the motives which prompt such care by musical show impresarios. But we think the effort is misapplied.

Virtue is making her last stand backstage. She has fled from the parquet, from the footlights and spotlights, to the bawny, but honest protection of the stage hands. If Virtue and her handmaidens, Modesty and Decency, are driven from the wings and creaking machinery behind the play, where will they find refuge? Some class of men or women connected with the New York stage should remain pure of heart. It seems to be left to the stage hands. Let them stand firm! Sully not their ideals by glimpses of pink toes! Or else—all, all, is lost.

WAR DEBT WISDOM.

The terms of the debt settlement offered Italy indicate that public opinion is tempering the Shylockian keenness of our debt commissioners and the Government to insist upon getting the full principal and interest of war debts, regardless of the character of the debt, ability to pay and the ruinous effect upon debtors.

In the Italian settlement the debt is scaled down to the lowest terms, if any interest at all is to be paid. Although 4 1/2 per cent is added to the principal as the total debt up to date, under the conditions of payment the actual interest will amount, it is estimated, to about 1 per cent. It is understood that there was only a difference of about $35,000,000 between the Italian offer and the offer of the American Debt Commission. Italy is asked to make payment of $2,000,000,000 on the present principal, including the original loan and interest, and about $500,000,000 in interest, extending over a period of from 65 to 70 years.

Apparently this is the most favorable settlement that has been made, and it ought to be the signal for scaling down all the debts. As Charles Piez, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, pointed out in a letter to Senator Borah, our war loans are not in the nature of ordinary loans, but were made when the borrowing nations were in desperate circumstances, to carry on a war which we found subsequently to be our war, and the money was mainly spent in purchasing supplies from us at war prices.

Under these circumstances, magnanimity is not only high virtue, but sound business and political judgment.

DR. MILLIKAN'S RAYS.

Those newspaper critics who have complained that too much space is given to news of crime may be gratified to observe how much space has recently been given to scientific discoveries. For example, Tuesday's Post-Dispatch devoted the first column of the first page to the news of the discovery, by Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan, winner of the Nobel Prize for physics, of a new species of ray, more powerful than the emanations from radium, and coming from outer space, day and night, impinging upon every part of the earth, but only to be measured by the most delicate instruments.

Is this sort of news worth while? It is certain that the layman understands it little or not at all. At this writing no future use can be seen for these wonderful Millikan rays.

But when Franklin was flying his kite and proving that lightning and electricity were one force, no one could have foreseen how that discovery would have developed into a science that now has given us the most powerful motor system conceivable. Due to the evolution of electric knowledge, we now have, in New York City alone, mechanism generating 3,300,000,000 horsepower hours of electricity. And no one can foretell how much more may come of Franklin's experiment.

The universe is an immeasurable storehouse of energy, waiting to be tapped. And men like Dr. Millikan are busy finding ways to tap it.

OH, PSHAW, UPSHAW.

Representative W. B. Upshaw of Georgia, life-long prohibitionist, in an address at the Antislavery League convention, said that "we need a campaign for law observance, and we should first institute a campaign of moral suasion on a large and influential section of the metropolitan press, to get all the editors and correspondents on the water wagon."

This is the same Upshaw who recently challenged Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, to debate the dry law with him. In declining the challenge the redoubtable head of Columbia University made the following stinging reply:

In Georgia Congressman Upshaw is not regarded as carrying on the tradition of Toombs, Stephens, Ben Hill and Gordon, since his nickname is "Pshaw." That he should speak of law enforcement above a whisper seems to show a lack of any sense of humor, since the enforcement of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments would certainly deprive him of a seat in the House of Representatives and give him an opportunity for usefulness in spraying the boll weevil on a Georgia cotton plantation.

It is only the Antislavery League and its adherents who take Upshaw seriously. As Dr. Butler further pointed out, he appears to believe that he is combating alcoholic addicts and persons on the verge of delirium tremens, instead of sincere men and women who are opposed to prohibition on principle, and who will not rest until the mischievous work of the Antislavery League is undone.

Don Quixote tilting at windmills was a figure to win respect, compared with the champion of one favorite law who ignores others the enforcement of which might seriously affect his own political fortunes.

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

Socrates: I suppose you young men are quite aware that France is just about out of money?

Glaucous: Yes, Socrates; we have been reading something of the sort.

Socrates: Very well. Let us see if we cannot make some suggestion. Certainly none of us wants to see France go bankrupt.

Glaucous: No.

Socrates: You will recall that some time ago a suggestion was made that she pay her war debt to us with wine.

Thrasymachus: How was that suggestion received?

Socrates: I don't think it got to first base. No doubt the dregs would much rather have France fail to pay us than let wine come into the country.

Thrasymachus: Didn't you tell us, Socrates, that after the Napoleonic wars England accepted manufactures for what the Continent owed her and sold those goods all over the world?

Socrates: Precisely. The trouble is that the world is more fenced off by one thing and another now than it was then. About the only thing the French are selling in this country now, so far as I can observe, is binoculars.

Thrasymachus: It must be that everybody over here has by this time two or three pairs. If that is so, why can't we, binocularly speaking, that the whole France threatened by the plight of France could be averted in the way suggested with much less serious consequence than to have her go bankrupt.

Polemarchus: That is the wine wouldn't hurt us half so bad as the bankruptcy would?

Socrates: No.

Glaucous: You would imagine that our financiers, who put up the money for prohibition and therefore have influence with the dregs, would make some such proposal.

Socrates: I am surprised that they don't. They can't be anywhere near out of wine themselves.

Thrasymachus: Maybe the French could help the situation by helping us put down rum running and therefore run the wine stocks low among financiers.

Socrates: An excellent suggestion. If we could get the country dried up at the source of dry contributions, the thing could be done in a jiffy.

Glaucous: She can at any rate warn the other Europeans that unless they quit running rum over here they will all go mad together. That ought to fetch just about all of them, since she either owes them money, expects to collect money from them or is in some way holding them up.

Socrates: Exactly.

Polemarchus: You have it again, so far as I can see.

Socrates: Good! Now let us match pennies to see who goes for the cigarettes.

Sir: I am outraged! Please tell me what to do about it.

Today I received in the mail a delightful foreign-looking letter—square purple envelope, 25-centime French stamp, Paris postmark and address in an interesting Gallic hand. Thoughts of friends abroad or other possible explanations raced through my head as I tore at the flap.

But the flap wasn't sealed. That peculiar fact did not at once impress me. A purple sheet of note paper came out. Alas! Its message was printed, and its salutation to this bachelor was "Dear Madam." True from a French designer of dress patterns, who got me on his "sucker list" through a local store.

Thus always with the curiosity and susceptibility of man! R. G. B.

Holland, whose religious wars sent the Pilgrim Fathers looking for Plymouth Rock, has decided to have a little dramatic convention over the subject of withdrawing the Dutch legation from the Vatican.

The Government collected $3,000,000 in prohibition fines last year, which shows whether or not we have been pulling the cork ever since we were told to quit pulling it out.

INCIDENT IN A FRENCH HUSBANDRY. I strolled into a restaurant.

Of the out, out Frenchy kind: A waiter kissed me on the cheek. But this I did not mind.

With certain grace misgivings then I ordered jivee l'mash; And later found that this was but A fancy name for hash.

The menu card to me was Greek; My stomach still was void.

Again I screwed my courage up And called for Suede d'Boyd.

My gameness soon began to wane, For I'm the nervous type.

But what the garcon guy brought in Was a puny piece of tripe.

When even this did not appease My tummy's frantic cry— I ordered Roque de la vivay— Me thought that it was pie.

But when a plate was set before My eager, waiting jaw, My disappointment, sir, was keen.

For cheese was what I saw.

I admitted then my bad defeat, Yet not without much swearing; Yet should I know that chailau pes Was pickled Swedish herring?

For all I knew Badesse Choucroute Might be some froggie's legs— I crashed into a beanery And ordered ham and eggs.

SOVIET RUSSIA.

From the Nation.

NOW that the Russian Soviet Government is celebrating its eighth birthday, it is certainly time to stop regarding it as a temporary affair. In 1917 and the years immediately following, the fall of the soviet was predicted hourly; making the wish father to the thought.

Experiments in prison reform, admirable figures in book publishing, a peasant movement carrying on its double task of governing and educating, a flourishing machine industry, a new theater—all these are equally so; and the figures given by the statistical conditions both with estimates of the Russian Academy of Sciences and the figures given by the statistical conditions both with estimates of the Russian Academy of Sciences and the figures given by the statistical conditions both with estimates of the Russian Academy of Sciences.

WON'T SELL BOOKSTORE HE'S BEEN IN 50 YEARS

Proprietor of Leary's in Philadelphia Forces Department Store to Build Around His.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Edwin S. Stuart, one-time Mayor of Philadelphia and one-time Governor of Pennsylvania, has snapped the old-fashioned padlock on the front doors of Leary's old book store for the last time. There was a suspicion of moisture about Stuart's eyes, for this strange character in the bustling Philadelphia of today was making his great sacrifice in the interests of "progress." Progress had won out over sentiment, but it was only a partial victory. Stuart has agreed that the old building, which was considerable of an eye sore along busy South Ninth street, should be razed. But he has resisted to the last all suggestions that he let the old Leary site go with the building.

A new Gimbel department store will occupy all the block bounded by Eighth and Ninth streets and Market and Chestnut—all except the Leary site, which Gimbel's will build around.

Got Bookstore Job. It was nearly 50 years ago that young Eddie Stuart, looking around him in his town for a career, got a job at Leary's old book store. The store itself was new then—a fine brick building, in which the busy town of Philadelphia had a specialty in which Leary specialized looked decidedly out of place. The job quickly became more than a job. Young Stuart contracted bibliophilia from his employer. Books became his passion.

Leary died, and bequeathed the business to Stuart. One day, it is said, Stuart registered a vow that he would keep Leary's going at the old stand as long as he lived. Time moved on and Stuart went into politics. His flair for politics swept him into the mayoralty in 1891 and into the governorship in 1897. But his vow held. His first love was books and he never married.

Store to Be Rebuilt. The Gimbel store, a few years ago decided to build a store covering a block, half of which it already occupied. Thus it went forth to buy up old buildings on the desired land. At Leary's they ran up against a stone wall. The higher they bid, the more firm came Stuart's refusal.

Finally, they decided to build around him. But while Stuart consented to dress his ramshackle

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 12.—De-

CONSIDERED PLEA OF GUILTY, THEN FREED AS SLAYER

William Borman's Counsel Discussed With Him Advisability of Admitting Murder, State Says.

A jury in Circuit Judge Land-wehr's Court last night acquitted William Borman, 29 years old, of the murder of Special Officer Fred
W. Benz, although, according to Assistant Circuit Attorney Stack, prosecutor of the case, the advisability of entering a plea of guilty to the charge was discussed by defense counsel with the client before introduction of testimony began last Tuesday.

Benz, a police officer for 22 years, was killed on the night of Nov. 22 last, when he and other policemen surprised a burglar in the residence of Fred Moeckel, of 1424 Amherst terrace.

The State, in demanding the death penalty for Borman, introduced testimony, principally by police officers, that the defendant was the burglar and that he shot
Benz as he ran from the Moeckel home and attempted to escape.

State's witnesses related they found an automatic pistol and jewelry taken from the residence of Borman's person when he was shot and captured in an alley in the rear of the home.

Story of Defense.
Testifying in his own defense,
Borman denied being the burglar, asserted he did not shoot Benz and stated he was returning to his home at 618 Derby avenue, Wellston, from St. Barbara's Church, Hamilton and Minerva avenues.

Bart M. Cecil, of 707 Wyoming street, a former city detective, who went to the rear of the Moeckel home with Benz in search of the burglar, testified a man, who he identified as the defendant, shot Benz when the officer called to him, "Halt, police," as he jumped from a rear window of the home.

Cecil, the State's star witness, said the burglar, after shooting Benz fled west in an alley. He testified he fired four shots at him, one bullet striking him in the left leg. He then captured Borman and found an automatic pistol, burglar's tools and several articles of jewelry taken from the Moeckel residence on his person, he declared.

In answer to a direct question of Prosecutor Stack, Cecil testified that at no time did he fire a shot in the direction of Benz. Details of his testimony were corroborated by other State witnesses.

Priests Testify.
To support Borman's testimony, the defense called two priests of St. Barbara's Church, who testified confession was held the night Benz was shot. A woman friend of Bor-man testified she met Borman outside the church and walked with him to an alley between Wells and Ridge avenues, where he left her and walked west in the alley.

composed largely of young men, that Benz was killed by a bullet from the revolver of Cecil.

The pistol, burglar's tools and jewelry taken from the Moeckel residence, were "planted" on Bor-man by policemen in order "to make a case against him," Lacy asserted. Testimony of some of the police officers, he stated, was "the most diabolical piece of police perjury in the history of St. Louis."

He charged the Circuit Attorney's office with "co-operating in the furtherance of the plot."

The members of the jury were:

5242 Lexington avenue; Bernard

STATE ATTORNEY ASSAILS 'DRAGON' IN CLOSING PLEA

Prosecutor Denounces the Defense Attempt to Blacken Name of Madge Oberholtzer.

BRANDISHES HER DYING STATEMENT

Refers to Stephenson and "His Gang"—Each Side Has Eight Hours for Final Arguments.

By the Associated Press. NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Nov. 12.—Closing arguments were started today in the murder trial of D. C. Stephenson, Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry. Prosecutor William W. Remy opened for the State.

The case growing out of the alleged abduction and attack on Miss Madge Oberholtzer of Indianapolis last March 15, began Oct. 12. She died April 14 after she had taken poison.

Waving in the faces of the jury the dying declaration left by Miss Oberholtzer, Prosecutor Remy today began his closing argument. "Madge Oberholtzer is dead," he said. "She would be alive today if it were not for the unlawful acts of Stephenson, Gentry and Klenck. I don't know of any case in jurisprudence in which the defendants had a fairer trial. And I know the State is satisfied."

"These defendants destroyed Madge Oberholtzer's body. They destroyed her soul. In the last few days they have tried to destroy her name. Rebuffed at every turn these men have tried character assassination. They did not attack her character directly—they didn't dare do that—but they resorted to innuendo and artifice."

"Shameful" Tactics. "The most shameful page in the history of this case was written when the defendants put their gang—yes, their gang—on the stand and tried to tell you Madge Oberholtzer was a bad girl. In that attempt they have failed."

Remy read the dying statement by sections, declaring each to be supported by evidence which he reviewed.

"They didn't cross the State line when Stephenson kidnaped Madge Oberholtzer. That would have involved a Federal law and even Stephenson doesn't think he's the law in the whole United States," Remy continued.

"Why did Stephenson take Gentry along if Madge went willingly—as they'd have you believe—on this trip to Hammond? Why did Stephenson have Gentry in the drawing room with them if it was a voluntary party? Why did Stephenson have a revolver that he toyed with as he talked to the porter? Why didn't Stephenson let Madge get a hat if she was going willingly? It doesn't make sense to say she wanted to go."

Refers to State Exhibit. Turning to one after another of the State exhibits, Remy linked them with the statements of the woman in her dying declaration and with the testimony of witnesses. The prosecutor's voice sank to a whisper as he told of the wounds on the girl's body and the State's theory of their infliction by Stephenson.

Stephenson, who wrote busily during the early part of Remy's arguments, laid aside his pad and pencil as the prosecutor got into his address and paid closer attention.

"Stephenson, Gentry and Klenck are convicted by the testimony of people that don't belong to any gang, people who are working for a living, people who aren't to be paid for their testimony in money or jobs," Remy continued.

"This is as complete a case as ever was made in this State. There is no doubt at all unless you want to take the unsupported word of men in the gang on which Stephenson relied—his strong-arm gang—when he said, 'I am the law.'"

"Shotgun Defense." Remy said the opposing counsel had offered a "shotgun defense," and declared they "didn't dare" make an opening statement.

As the end of the trial approached, Stephenson continued confident and cheerful. Klenck and Gentry, his bodyguards when he was "grand dragon" of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana and afterward, also retained the air of confidence that has been with them since the trial started.

Ten farmers, a manager of a public utility and a truck driver comprise the jury.

Fred Stone, an Indianapolis automobile race driver, testifying in rebuttal today, said he had seen Stanley Hill and Miss Oberholtzer in Stephenson's office prior to last Jan. 12. On cross-examination Stone denied he had been employed by Stephenson to transport whiskey by automobile from Florida to Indiana. He said he had known Stephenson for some time and formerly worked for the Ku Klux Klan.

Eight hours have been allotted to each side for closing arguments.

ick, 73 years old, Kentucky physician and former legislator, and Mrs. Elsie Venter, 71, Seattle poetess, were married here yesterday. Averick could not forget Mrs. Ven-ter's promise given him in Oldenburg, Ind. Learning she had become a widow, he renewed his suit.

Don't Worry about Gray Hair

This Clean, Colorless Liquid Will Restore the Original Shade

Thousands of people have quickly banished grayness and have restored the original shade to their hair with the remarkable preparation known as Kolor-Bak.

Physicians and scientists know that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells in the scalp because these cells have become inactive. No matter what the cause, it is amazing to see how the grayness disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. It is the best known substitute for the natural pigmentation. It also banishes dandruff and stops itching of the scalp and falling hair. If you are gray, Kolor-Bak is all you need to make your hair look "young" again. No need to furnish a sample of your hair—no tests to make—as this one colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Money back instantly if Kolor-Bak is not satisfactory.

Suppose accident or illness should enter your home. You could pay for whatever medical assistance you needed. But if the Community Fund should fail to function, the vast Hospital, Health and Nursing System of St. Louis would break down. Individual patients, no matter how well-to-do, could not pay enough to support it. All citizens must "chip in" annually through the Community Fund.

These Hospitals and Health Societies know no race or creed. They serve all alike, those who can pay and those who can't. Without them, medical progress in St. Louis would dwindle. Add some-

POLICE TO HOLD ONE MORE CIRCUS, BOARD DECREES

Commissioners Decide the Event Next April Will Be Last of Its Kind for Relief Society.

WILL PASS ON THE PROMOTION PLANS

Policy of Raising Funds in That Manner, However,
Disapproved as Tending to Create Disrespect.

In granting permission to the Police Relief Association to hold its annual circus next April, an affair which annually nets the association from $80,000 to $100,000 in revenue, the Board of Police Commissioners announced yesterday that the event thereafter would be discontinued.

The authority is granted upon the condition that the methods employed in the sale of tickets and the solicitation of program advertising be subject to the approval of the Police Board, which expressed its disapproval of the policy of raising funds in this manner. As is known, the police themselves conduct a house-to-house and office-to-office canvass for the sale of tickets, while business firms are solicited for program advertising by special police solicitors on detached duty.

Tendency to Decrease Respect. "There is danger that persons may purchase circus tickets from police officers," the board asserted in a formal statement, "either because they fear some sort of prosecution, or because they hope to obtain special and undue consideration in future dealings with the police. Space on the program may be taken by merchants for the same reasons, all of which has a tendency to decrease proper respect for the force. Not only this, but in many cases it puts certain members of the force under what may seem to be obligations to certain citizens, making it difficult, if not impossible, for them to perform police duty in the proper manner."

However, the board realizing that the Police Relief Fund now performs a most necessary function in providing insurance and other benefits for the members of the force," expressed its concern over a critical financial condition, which the association faces by reason of a Government claim for $5,000 taxes. This sum represents the amusement tax, which the Government contends is due it, for the annual circus presented in the post-war period. The claim has been in dispute for several years, the association contending that the annual entertainment was entirely charitable in character.

Group Insurance Favored. The board also makes the suggestion "that most, if not all, of the protection afforded by the Police Relief Fund can be obtained by securing group insurance covering all members of the police force in some old line company, at a cost which could be met by the income of the Relief Association." This income is derived chiefly from the payment of $2 dues monthly by members of the department of all ranks, to which is added a percentage of certain rewards, donations and the like.

The group insurance suggestion, the statement continued, "has merit and should be carefully investigated." However, the investigation of this and other suggestions will require time. It is pointed out, and no definite conclusion thereon can reasonably be reached by Dec. 1, by which date it is necessary to conclude arrangements for the 1926 circus.

Loepker Heads Association. The statement was transmitted to Capt. Charles Loepker of the North Market Street Station, whose election as president of the Relief Association was announced yesterday. He succeeds Patrolman Patrick J. Leahy of the Dayton Street District, who resigned in protest of the dismissal for physical incapacity of Patrolman John E. Riley, former secretary. Patrolman Martin R. Bever of the North Market Street Station, former treasurer, was elected secretary and Patrolman Arthur J. Boylan of the Traffic Division, treasurer.

Scotland Yard Looking for "Brooklyn Billy," Notorious Hotel Sneak, in $483,000 Case.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—A new suspect is being sought in connection with the theft of $483,000 in jewels on Sept. 30 from the Hotel Plaza suite of Mrs. James P. Donahue, a wireless message from London to the New York Times discloses.

Scotland Yard detectives, at the request of New York police, the message said, were seeking an international sneak thief known as "Brooklyn Billy," who is said to have been on good terms with Gerald Chapman, the mail robber, now under sentence of death in Connecticut for the killing of a policeman at New Britain.

"Brooklyn Billy" made it a practice to patronize hotels frequented by wealthy American tourists and, showed Mr. and Mrs. Donahue from it was thought possible that he followed them to Paris.

GENNA GANGSTERS GET 14 YEARS FOR MURDER

Chicago State's Attorney to Seek Death Penalty for Second Policeman's Death.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—John Scialli and Albert Anselmi, members of the notorious Genna gang, who killed a policeman, were found guilty of murder and sentenced to 14 years in prison by a jury which deliberated 10 hours until early today.

Their victim, Harold Olson, was shot in a pistol battle in which another policeman, Charles Walsh, and Mike Genna, gang leader, were killed.

Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, who had sought the death penalty, announced that Scialli and Anselmi would be tried at once on another murder charge in connection with Walsh's death and that a verdict of hanging again would be sought.

Scialli and Anselmi contended that they did not know that the automobile which drew up alongside their contained policemen and so shot in self defense.

The trial was enlivened by bitter clashes between opposing attorneys and charges by Patrick H. O'Donnell, chief defense counsel, that the Gennas had been making monthly protection payments to numerous policemen to obtain immunity in their alcohol manufacturing and bootlegging operations.

RECOMMEND U. S. SEIZURE OF $1,500,000 WARD LINE SHIP

Customs Officials Confiscate Rum-laden Speedboat Said to Have Taken Cargo From Orizaba.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Seizure of the Ward Line steamship Orizaba by the Government as a rum-runner, has been recommended by Customs officials after confiscation in the East River of a liquor-laden speedboat said to have been engaged in transporting liquor from the Orizaba to some point along the shore. The liner arrived Tuesday from Cuba. She is valued at more than $1,500,000.

The Customs special service squad, observing a launch alongside the liner, gave chase and fired more than 40 shots. They said they were fired on in return. The three men in the launch escaped, two by leaping into the water as the launch approached the dock and the third by leaping to the dock. One hundred demijohns of rum were seized on the craft.

Assistant Solicitor of Customs Barnes immediately recommended to United States Attorney Buckner that the Orizaba be seized. If proceedings are instituted against the liner, it will be the first time the Government has sought to label so large a steamship for a prohibition law violation.

At a hearing before Buckner, William Inlay, general manager of the Ward Line and Samuel McElroy, chief of police of the line, denied official knowledge of the smuggling and assured the Federal attorney they would co-operate in putting a stop to it. In the course of the hearing it developed that more than 60 bottles of rum had been found in one of the Orizaba's staterooms.

YOUTH ADMITS STEALING AUTO BUT POLICE CAN'T FIND IT

Iowan Thinky Man Who Was to Have Bought Machine Disappeared With It.

Four hours after he had arrived here from Crescent, Ia., with a stolen Ford coupe, Earl Deere, 19 years old, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives Lanigan and Ulrich in a poolroom at 1531 Market street. Deere, whose actions had excited the suspicions of the policemen, admitted the theft and said he had left the car at Sixteenth and Chestnut streets.

When the detectives went there for it the car was gone and Deere expressed the belief that a man who was to have bought it had stolen it from him. He was held charged with carrying a concealed weapon. A revolver was found in his pocket.

Can Christian France Justify Her Moslem Massacre?

THE screaming and bursting shells that spattered the streets of Damascus with the blood of innocent men, women, and children sent a thrill of horror through the civilized world—a horror not lessened by the fact that the shells were fired from the guns of a Christian nation. And the work of the artillery was supplemented by bombing air-planes and by tanks that spat machine-gun fire as they lumbered through the historic streets of what is said to be the world's oldest inhabited city.

"While we still mourn with the French over the shelling of the cathedral at Reims, Damascus lies in smoking ruins," remarks the St. Louis Post-Dispatch which reminds us that "Damascus is to the Moham-medan what Reims is to the Christian." The same paper notes further that "while the right hand of France was signing the Locarno agreements and intervening, as a member of the League of Nations, in the Greece-Bulgar squabble, its left hand was committing ruthless butchery in Syria."

French witnesses from Damascus, however, are quoted as saying that the greater part of the damage done to the city was due to vandalism by the rebels. They also argue that the shelling of Damascus "saved Syria from much more serious trouble."

The leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST, the November 14th number, deals in much detail with France's war in Syria and presents its political significance as viewed by the newspaper press of America and France. The article is graphically illustrated, with a reproduced photograph of Damascus, a map showing the territory taken over by France in Syria, and a picture of Major-General Paul Emmanuel Sarrail, who is blamed for the Damascus massacre.

Parents Beware---A Warning From Church and State

STATESMEN OF THE CHURCH AND NATION emphasize again that the "perils ahead" are moral, and speaking at different times and places, urge that reform begin with the parents if the younger generation is to be kept safely on its feet in the swirling currents of changing conditions.

THE LITERARY DIGEST this week presents the views of the President of the United States, The House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church, a Cabinet officer and the Chief Magistrate of New York City, who all draw the same conclusions and hammer the same lesson home—that parents may not wash their hands of the responsibilities of parenthood.

DECADENCE OF LIBERTY
THEME OF DEAN LOEB

Framers of Constitution Would Be Astounded at Latter-Day Developments.

The present decadence of personal liberty would have astounded the framers of the Constitution, Dean Isidor Loeb of the Washington University Commercial School said last night at the first of his six addresses on the Constitution, to be delivered under auspices of the League of Women Voters.

At the conclusion of his address, wherein he traced the hammering down of "inalienable rights" to conform with the exigencies of industrial or moralistic restriction, he was asked what the framers of the Constitution would have thought about prohibition.

"They could never have been in sympathy with any such movement," he replied, "since they lived in a day when individualism was the essence of current political and economic theory."

From Rousseau to Today.
He recounted the history of the idea of personal liberty, from its formulation in France by Rousseau, through its conflict in England with governmental restrictions on industry in the eighteenth century, to its first severe setback when British industry reached such proportions in the next century that the Government had to take a hand in problems of city congestion and the like.

In the United States the crisis came much later, since industry here had slower growth, he said, but when it did come it was harder to solve. The sense of inalienable rights had had time to become more deeply embedded in the character of the people.

It came in 1850, when the industrial flood struck this country and forced the Government to subordinate individual freedom to the immediate necessity of fighting ignorance, poverty, disease, immorality and crime with the weapons of Federal taxation and control of interstate commerce. As results, he pointed to food and drug laws, anti-narcotic laws, restrictions against misuse of the mails, and the halting of the distribution of the old-fashioned poisonous sulphur match.

Steady Encroachment.
From 1850, then, notwithstanding that the Bill of Rights had been inserted in the Constitution specifically to guard against legislative encroachment on the individual, the development of the Government had been steadily to increase such encroachment.

The Government has gained control for the general welfare of such matters as the proponents of individual rights—enactors of the Constitution—would never have thought possible," Dr. Loeb said.
"There is a quite obvious reaction today against any expansion of governmental regulatory powers, while others are struggling to maintain that expansion."

"And there is one thing clear, the existing order, with the Government as 'regulator almighty,' is no more permanent than that of the Eighteenth Century."

MACADAM PARKING SPACE
AT CITY HALL PLANNED

Appropriation of $3000 for the Purpose Is Approved by Estimate Board.

An appropriation of $3000 to construct a macadam parking space at the city hall was approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment today.

As outlined by Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks, the space will be 20 feet wide and will extend from Market street to Clark avenue on the west side of Twelfth street, space now used for lawn. It will provide temporary parking space for persons with business to transact in the building.

The board also approved a $40,- 000 appropriation to increase the amount available for condemnation of land for the sewerworks pipe line in St. Louis County from $75,- 000 to $115,000. Director of Public Utilities Wall explained that the money must be on hand before construction work begins although the city will contest the payment of $112,280 recommended by the commissioners.

SERGEANT ADAMS WINS EXCITING BATTLE FROM ROMERO-ROJA

U. S. Army Champion Rolls Up Big Early Point Lead, But Fades Fast at Close

Good Generalship All That Saves Lighter Heavyweight From Clubbing Blows of Powerful Chilean — Fight Best Seen Here in Years.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Sergeant Jack Adams of Scott Field, heavyweight champion of the United States Army, is still marching on to higher pugilistic goals today, as a result of a 10-round victory over the ponderous, powerful Spanish-Chilean, Asbestos Romero-Roja. He defeated before a wildly cheering crowd at the Odeon last night.

There was a time, about two minutes before the close of the bout, when Adams' friends would have traded his future for a state bailout. That was when the symmetrical, but slightly lopsided man was steadily winning before the bludgeoning-like pounding of his South American opponent; when it seemed to the spectators that the soldier's visibly tiring legs and exhausted arms could not carry through to the final gong.

But they did; and today Sergeant Adams is still a "hope" in the heavyweight world.

Chilean Far More Powerful. And he is not a bad hope, at that. He was a notable feat, in beating the Chilean, he conceded many pounds weight, considerable punching power and greater physical strength to his towering brown-skinned foe.

Make no mistake, this Chilean, although crude, like Firpo, in his boxing, is a dangerous man at all times. Adams, a well-built athlete of 130 pounds, seemed frail beside his bear-like foe. Something of Firpo's appearance was to be seen in the Chilean. The same shock of hair, the same Indian cast of features, the same clubbing overhand blows and the same enormous physical power that made the Argentine famous were part of the Chilean's makeup.

Adams' only physical advantage in the only way possible. He danced in, out and around like a dog vamping at an upstart bear, slashing with his left at Rojas' face, now at his brown body and at time crashing a right to the Chilean's jaw as the South American lean half rushed. At all times Adams was on the retreat when the Chilean crowded in.

Adams Rolls Up Many Points. For the first seven rounds Adams gave the Chilean a boxing lesson, but he was a very cautious instructor. Every now and then the big bear would paw out and then the crowd would shriek in its breath as the blow whistled past the soldier's chin.

The Chilean found few landing places for his blows. The Sergeant was not at home when the senior called. Once or twice, however, the fleet feet of the soldier failed to carry him out of the danger zone and then the entire Army, or its representative on the ground, must have felt a chill.

Wham! In the fourth landed an overhand right from South America. It was just like 25 other overhands that the soldier had "slipped." But he misjudged this one and the blow glanced off Adams' jaw, sending him reeling back to the ropes. Rojas sprang across the gap with amazing agility and let fly left and right hooks.

Odeon Fight Result

Sergt. Jack Adams, Scott Field, outpointed Asbestos Romero-Roja, Chile, in 10 rounds. Heavyweights.

Mann Dugan, Plainview, Ill., outpointed Bryan Porter, East St. Louis, six rounds. Light Heavyweights.

Tom Smith, St. Louis, defeated Private Shaultera, Scott Field, four rounds. Welterweights.

Gene Riley, St. Louis, knocked out Al McCoy, St. Louis, in the second round. One hundred and forty pounds.

Jimmy Little, F. uson, defeated Jim McCarthy, St. Louis, four rounds. One hundred and forty pounds.

Referee—Harry Sharpe.

The decisions given above are unofficial. The club's rules prohibit decision contests.

JOE and ASBESTOS—Asbestos Girl Didn't Have to Be Told

Missouri to Use All Its Tricks in Oklahoma Game

Sooners Are Known as Great Dope Spillers in Valley Conference.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. COLEMAN, Mo., Nov. 12.—When the University of Missouri and University of Oklahoma football teams meet here Saturday in the Tiger homecoming, the clash will mark the meeting of wits of Ben G. Owen, dean of Missouri Valley Conference coaches, who for more than 20 years has coached Oklahoma, and of Edwin Henry, a comparative newcomer in conference circles.

There is a marked difference in the style of game which the two mentors employ. Owen's eleven are always spectacular. Frequently they take long chances, sometimes failing but often rising to great heights and upsetting the dope. In fact, the Sooners are just about the best dope spillers in the loop.

Henry, on the other hand, uses conservative football. He likes the passing game as well as Owen, but in a different way. His men are well schooled in when to and when not to take chances with an aerial attack. Since Henry's debut in the conference, honors with Owen are both men are strategists, and known for the smart teams they develop. For that reason, the meeting of the two eleven's this year with the Tigers already the out.

Handicapped throughout the season by muddy fields, neither the Tigers or Sooners have had an opportunity to strike their full stride on offense. Fair weather to date this week is drying out the field, and unless rain reappears the last of the week the two eleven's may have an opportunity to deliver the bottom of their respective backs of tricks and uncover all of the offensive strength.

Coach Henry has worked his men hard this week, though his effort to put as many of his reserves into the game as possible has been hampered by the rain. The bulk of the Tiger team so far this week has been taken up with work on offense. Oklahoma's plays have not been forgotten, and a freshman eleven, coached by Harry Lansing and Chas. Simpson, who saw the Kansas-Oklahoma game last week has been giving points to the daily lists of the Oklahoma offense, particularly the Owens passing attack.

In practice, Missouri has looked better than at any time this year. Tuesday, with the practice period about half over, Coach Henry lined up his men to receive the kickoff from the fresh, and it took just five downs for the regulars to score a touchdown. Lining up again and again to take the freshman points, each time with a different lineup, the veterans romped through the yardage for one six-point counter after another until darkness called a halt.

The advance application for tickets to the Oklahoma game, the heaviest in the history of football at Columbia, with the exception of the Kansas game, last year, according to C. L. Brewer, director of athletics, has been the heaviest, however, good seats are still available on the north side of the field, and several thousand seats at the ends of the field will also be available.

Defeating the Schaefer squad, the Witters last night rolled up a tie for the first in the Major City Bowling League at the Rogers alley.

Hoppe Defeats Schaefer in Two-Cue Exhibitions

Former Title Holder Runs Out 250-Point Balkline Game in 2 Innings.

Willie Hoppe, former 18.3 balkline champion, and Jake Schaefer, present titleholder, gave local followers of the green cloth game an idea of how cushion caroms should be played in their final exhibition yesterday at Peterson's parlors. It was the first time that two balkline masters had engaged in a match at this style.

Hoppe, whose playing was sensational throughout the day, proved more adept than his youthful opponent, winning, 290 to 141, in 25 innings. This gave him an average of 8, the best ever made on the table now in use for championship play. Schaefer's average was 5.21-24. Hoppe had a high run of 38, while Schaefer's best was 23.

The two masters gave a truly remarkable exhibition of cushion play. They carried on one, two, three and five cushions, made and cushion draws. Schaefer, during his run of 23, made several fine open table shots.

Hoppe was the Hoppe of old in the balkline match. He won, 250 to 2, ending out in two innings. It was the worst defeat suffered by either in the five games, of which Hoppe won three. Hoppe started with a run of 213, the best of the series. He ended on his next turn at the table ran out. His average of 125 tied that made by Schaefer the previous day.

In the afternoon three-cushion game, Schaefer won from Hoppe, 25 to 18, in 14 innings. In the evening game, Schaefer won from Hoppe, 25 to 18, in 14 innings. In the evening game, Schaefer won from Hoppe, 25 to 18, in 14 innings.

RAILROAD DEBT PROPOSAL
U. S. Asked to Cut Interest for Lines in Difficulties.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—A bill and argument to be put before the coming session of Congress urging that railroads in financial difficulties which owe money to the Government be allowed a reduction in interest from 6 to 4 or 4 1/2 per cent was made public today by the Railroad Owners' Association.

The case of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, now in receivership, was cited especially as one in which the Government should reduce its exactions, since the road owes the Government $55,000,000. A reduction, the argument contended, would facilitate early termination of this receivership.

Caliph in Exile Muses Over World's Mad Rush For It Knows Not What

Abdul Medjid at Nice Whiles Away Hours
Painting Landscapes and Longing for Return to Constantinople.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
The Chicago Daily News.
(Copyright, 1925.)

NICE, France, Oct. 20.—There are no aids-de-camp, no lackeys and no valet to announce visitors at the residence of the Caliph Abdul Medjid, in exile in Nice. A French maid opens the door and asks visitors to sit in a kind of a parlor-smoking-billiard-room. The furniture is of the kind one finds in the professionally furnished villas in Nice.

There is a small radio set and there are imitation Turkish rugs in his home of a man who once had one of the most wonderful collections of Oriental carpets. There are cheap prints on the wall and a somewhat ancient billiard table—probably the only antique in the house—stands in the middle of the room.

A pretty young girl rushed into the room as I sat there and, seeing an unexpected visitor, stopped, embarrassed.

"You want to see his majesty, my father, or his highness, my brother?"

When I told her I wanted to see her father, she looked at me inquisitively and said:

"Wait half a minute: I will send someone to talk to you. My father is still resting."

I waited before Caliph. A few minutes later a young secretary came in to keep me company until the Caliph could see me. When later a bell rang he ushered me into a large drawing room where sat the Caliph.

The secretary had forewarned the correspondent that "His majesty will receive you only provided you do not touch on political subjects." The warning was unnecessary.

"I am glad you came," said the Caliph by way of welcome. "Americans seem to have better memories than other people. None of my former acquaintances from Constantinople have bothered to come to see me here. It is agreeable not to be forgotten when you are no longer what you use to be."

He led me to the veranda, from which he watches for hours every day the play of the blue waves of the Mediterranean. "It reminds me of Constantinople, doesn't it?" he said. "After I was forced to leave my capital, I went first to Switzerland, but I do not like the mountains."

Exhibits His Paintings.
"I have managed to paint quite a few landscapes. In Turkey I seldom did that. I always preferred to paint portraits. Have a look," and he showed me several canvases on the wall. "They are not very good," he added, humbly. "But you see, I am getting old."

On the music stand was Mendelssohn's concerto for violin. "Since I left my country I have been trying to follow the progress of the younger generation. People have always said that the Mohammedan religion was against progress. That isn't true."

"The prophet said: 'Thou shalt work from the cradle to the tomb, and whenever thou findest something new take it and make it thine own for the greater glory of thy faith.' I have been doing that all my life, but I must admit that modernism has defeated me. There is no thought, no art, no beauty in these modern things. Soulless music, like soulless poetry and soulless art, cannot live."

"I am far from all political struggles and, consequently, can watch the progress of the world with a much more objective eye. It seems to me that the great disease that is undermining the world is the lack of faith and the desire to reach some goal—that is not quite clear in the minds of our young people. But killing faith is their great mistake."

Hard to Get Used to Poverty.
"See what is happening in my own unfortunate country. They are trying to modernize it and to help it on the road to progress by killing its religious institutions. They have even abolished the fez and women's veils; as if the head-dress made man wise or ignorant."

Then, remembering that this was politics, he quickly changed the subject. "I read now more than before, eight to 10 or 12 hours every day. It is good to read. I wish the modern generation would spend more time in reading instead of being all the time on the go. That makes life so much more expensive, too." The old man sighed again.

"It is difficult for us to get used to poverty—not for me, for I am old, but for the children. I have just had to buy a car for my son. Nothing much, just a modest touring car, but it cost me quite a lot of money. And the upkeep is so costly."

"We had 15 cars 18 months ago in Constantinople, but they were confiscated; so was my beautiful Arab horse, given me by the emir of Mecca. They tell me that Mustapha Kemal's wife had the horse for a while, but she could not master it and gave it to her husband. I do not know what has happened to it now. I would like a horse here, but it is out of the question."

"Life is too expensive, and I have all my unfortunate relatives to support. They have been turned out of Turkey, penniless, and their estates have been confiscated. They come to me for their daily bread. So how can I support them and have horses as well? But God is merciful to him who can wait."

Gripping Stories of Life!

The stories that stir your soul, that give you the greatest thrill, that linger longest in your memory, are not the creations of the fiction writer, but stories of events that really happened, and in which the characters are true.

This great fact is hammered home in a most powerful manner in every issue of True Story Magazine. In this great publication are true stories of love, sacrifice and struggle—written by men and women who have lived them.

Fiction is interesting; a good drama will hold your attention for an hour or two—but the true-life narratives that appear in True Story Magazine, will grip your imagination and tug at your heart strings as no other kind of story can do. The December issue is literally packed with thrilling adventures. Your news-dealer has it. Buy it today.

DOES YOUR COUGH KEEP YOU Awake?

There is no need for you to suffer the discomfort of broken sleep because of coughing. A dose of PERTUSSIN, taken slowly, before going to bed will keep you from coughing—and it is entirely free from "dope" (such as narcotics, chloroform, cannabine or other injurious drugs) and therefore, absolutely harmless. PERTUSSIN has a remarkably quieting effect upon the delicate nerves and membranes of the throat and bronchial tubes, and promotes a speedy recovery. Known to physicians for over twenty years and sold by all druggists in large and small bottles.

Not Heart Disease; Just a Gas Attack!

Those lightning jabs of pain felt in the region of the heart after eating usually result from gas in the stomach pressing against the heart and interfering with its action. Such an attack may be accompanied by palpitation, dizziness, shortness of breath, numbness, drowsiness or a peculiar nervous feeling.

The safest and easiest way to get rid of all distressing symptoms is to take Rasmann's Gas Tablets before and after meals. These pleasant little tablets are compounded especially for the relief of gas and its many evil effects. They invigorate the stomach, nerves and glands, helping to correct the digestive weakness that causes the trouble.

Rasmann's Gas Tablets, in the yellow packages, are sold by Judges & Delph, Wolff-Willson and other leading druggists, 25c a box. Don't fail to try them. If necessary, order direct from J. Rasmann, Chemist, San Francisco.

INDICTMENT OF PRINCIPALS ONLY LIKELY IN THE CARLETON INQUIRY

Employe - Accomplices in Carrying Out Falsifications of Audit Expected to Get Immunity.

SEVERAL TESTIFY BEFORE GRAND JURY

Secretary Alfred F. Baggot and Cashier Joseph Malecek Regarded as State's Chief Witnesses.

As the grand jury investigation of the crash of the Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co. draws to a close, it is believed that only the two principals, Murray Carleton and Forrest Ferguson, will be indicted, and that employee accomplices, who under instructions carried out the falsification of company records to obtain $2,200,000 in loans from banks, will have immunity.

Two reasons exist for withholding prosecution of the employees. First, they are needed by the State as witnesses in prosecuting the principals and have shown a willingness to give this assistance. Second, they do not appear to have had the motive of personal gain, but did as they were told in order to hold their jobs.

The only indication of possible personal profit to the employee accomplices appeared in the payment of large bonuses to two employees of the Ferguson-McKinney Co., Secretary Alfred F. Baggot and Cashier Joseph Malecek. Baggot's bonus of $5000 was equal to his salary, and Malecek's $3500 bonus, which he has lately returned, exceeded his salary. However, the giving of bonuses to employees is common in Washington avenue wholesale establishments.

Baggot testified before the grand jury yesterday afternoon, is believed to have repeated the statement he made to the banker credit committee. The committee, on the basis of Baggot's declarations, issued a statement last week in which it placed the entire responsibility for the unlawful "skimming" of funds and the falsification of records to obtain credit, upon Carleton, president of the Carleton Dry Goods Co. and controlling the Ferguson-McKinney Co., who, at the age of 33 is seriously ill in St. Luke's Hospital, and Ferguson, president of Ferguson-McKinney, was held to have had full knowledge of the unlawful acts directed by Carleton.

Malecek was also a witness yesterday. At the opening of this afternoon's session, the third day's inquiry into the Ferguson-McKinney affair, it appeared that the grand jury would not get through today, and that no action would be taken before the next session, which may not be held before Tuesday.

At least three witnesses remained to be questioned, this afternoon and later. They were two employees of the Carleton Dry Goods Co., Robert Stubbs, assistant secretary, and Arthur Southward, cashier, and E. L. Schroeder, a departmental manager of Ferguson-McKinney.

Schroeder, who was familiar with the value of the stock on hand at the time of the last inventory, which figured in the firm's financial statement, has told Receiver Angert of the amount to which he certified, and has said that the amount shown in the company's statement represents the padding of his figures.

The Probable Charges.
Ample ground for indictment on the basis of the transactions shown, exists in Missouri law, Circuit Attorney Sidener has concluded. The statute on which the grand jury is most likely to proceed is that which makes it a felony to misrepresent assets, for the purpose of obtaining credit. The penalty for violation of this statute, on conviction, is a jail or prison term, up to five years in the penitentiary, or a fine up to $1000, or both.

The checks and frauds statute, section 2542, may also be used. It provides for punishment by imprisonment up to seven years for any person who, with intent to cheat or defraud, shall obtain money or property by use of trick, deception or confidence game. Use of the embezzlement statute has also been considered, but evidence of personal defalcation has not appeared against Carleton. Continued on Page 2, Column 6.
